CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A great many players find it difficult to recognize a squeeze play and undoubtedly the most difficult of all squeeze plays to recognize is the one known as the Vienna coup.

I class the following as the best played hand of the Conneau Lake, Pa., tournament. It involves an interesting Vienna coup play and was played by O. E. Emrich, a member of the Western Reserve team of Cleveland which won the contract team-of-four championship. In addition, Mr. Emrich has the high cumulative percentage for the tournament. While Mr. Emrich's bidding at times may be classed as bold, he is one of the best card players in the country.

♠4-3	♥Q-4	♦A-K-10-7-2	♣8-6-2

WEST
♠A-10-6-5	♥10-8-6-3	♦7-5-4-3	♣9
SOUTH

The Bidding.

Mr. Emrich sat in the South and opened the contracting with one club. West passed and North bid one diamond. Mr. Emrich's next declaration was three no trump.

The Play.

West's opening lead was the eight of spades which East won with the ace. East returned the ten of spades which Mr. Emrich refused to cover. The six was continued which West won with the queen. Mr. Emrich discarding a club from dummy.

The king of spades was cashed by West and another club discarded from dummy. Mr. Emrich dropping a heart.

East and West had taken the first four tricks, and West was in the lead. It looked as though he were bound to make either the nine of hearts or the king of clubs.

However, he realized that if he were to lead away from either king, the declarer might make his contract. Therefore West selected the lead of the eight of diamonds which Mr. Emrich, in the South, won with the jack.

After West's play of the eight of diamonds, Mr. Emrich marked him for both missing kings. He decided not to try what might prove to be a losing finesse, but selected the play known as the Vienna coup and now played his ace of hearts, deliberately setting up West's king. He then played the queen of diamonds. West discarded the seven of hearts, and the queen was overtaken by dummy's king. Mr. Emrich then let four straight diamonds from dummy. It was immaterial what West played. Mr. Emrich discarded his last of hearts and three clubs. This left him holding the ace and queen of clubs, while dummy held the ace and queen of hearts and the eight of clubs. West was able to discard the nine of hearts and the four and five of clubs, but on the fourth diamond he was squeezed.

He held the king of hearts and the four and queen of clubs. If he discarded the king of hearts, dummy's queen was good, so he played the queen of clubs and now all that Mr. Emrich had to do was to lead a club from dummy so as with the ace and partner's West's king and the last trick was won in his own hand with the queen of clubs to make his contract.

EXPERIENCE IS A GREAT TEACHER.

Especially in bringing up children.

Mothers and fathers too will no doubt recall the difficulties they had with their first child. There is so much to learn about the best way of keeping the child healthy and happy. Finding actual experience of your own the next best guide is the experience of others. One of the most difficult times is the teething period.

At this trying time there is no friend like Baby's Own Tablets, the remedy specially designed to meet the health-needs of babies and young children. Read the following letter from a grateful parent.

"Experience is a great teacher" writes Mrs. (Rev.) M. E. Conron, of 187, Marlboro St. Brantford, Canada. "When our first baby arrived I knew nothing about Baby's Own Tablets. When baby began to cut his teeth he was cross and feverish and would not take his food. We lost much sleep and I began to get quite exhausted. One day when my husband, who is a clergyman, was out visiting, a lady advised us to try Baby's Own Tablets. We certainly found they worked wonders. In twenty-four hours we had a different baby. Now we have a family of six little ones with whom we have used no other medicine but Baby's Own Tablets. They are splendid for the children and babies, preventing colds from developing beyond the early stages. And because they are pleasant to take we have no trouble in administering them nor are there any griping effects. We certainly recommend them to all parents. Once used no one would be without them."

Baby's Own Tablets, the health regulators for the little ones, are on sale at chemists and medicine dealers everywhere.

A WORD IN SEASON

THE business world is facing a period of slow recuperation. In it there is no place for undue optimism or undue pessimism. A measure of cautious procedure will see things through.

N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd. urges investors not to lose sight of the elements of investment—security of principal and certainty of yield. It stresses the fact that the price of a security must depend upon the conditions inside the issuing company and the trade and the conditions outside them. There is nothing else for it to depend upon.

Because of this, N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd. advises investors to place their money in a "Growing Industry." In an industry with a constructive plan already in action to meet a definite public need.

The £30 bonds of this Company—payable by instalments—issued to effect an afforestation programme of vital importance to international trade—amply secured—and with a conservatively estimated yield of £250 in approximately twelve years—are long-term investments of solid worth.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 18-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to look money. They take a cheap apartment and her struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson also in the News.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

July brings an intense heat wave. Friends invite Cherry and Dan to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed at the office and Cherry sets out with Pearson in his car. A heavy rainstorm overtakes them and they lose their way. At last they reach an old station and take shelter there. Pearson tells Cherry he loves her. She becomes angry and he leaves. Later they set out in the car and after a dangerous drive arrive home. Several days later Dan tells Cherry he is tired of the town and wants to go to New York.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Dan was beside her. "Why, no," he said in a startled voice. "That isn't what I mean at all. I wouldn't go any place without you, Cherry. You know that!"

"But you said you wanted to get away from all this. I don't see how we could leave. There's the lease on the apartment."

"That's just it!" he insisted. "Leases—bills—always something to force you into a rut! That's what I hate, Cherry. That's what I want to get away from!"

"I don't see how things would be different anywhere else."

Dan stood before the window, a mutinous figure. He rubbed a hand through his hair, pushing the locks away.

"Oh, I suppose you're right. But, Lord! I wish something would come along to stir things up. I'm not used to this sort of life. I've always pushed on somewhere else when things got too tame."

The girl said nothing. Phillips turned and saw her brush her eyes with a handkerchief. He crossed the room and put a hand on her shoulder.

"Listen, honey," he said. "You know I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Why, I wouldn't do that for the world! Just forget I said anything. I'm just a tramp I guess—a no-good who doesn't realize when he's wall off. You won't think any more about it, will you, Cherry? Promise me you won't!"

"But, I want you to be happy, Dan!"

His arms were around her. "Why shouldn't I be happy? I've got you, haven't I? Say, I guess I'm just about the luckiest guy on earth. And don't think I don't realize it! That ennobling doesn't mean anything. Come on—help with the dishes!"

He was unusually cheerful throughout the rest of the evening. After they had finished the kitchen work they rode down town to see a motion picture. Dan talked more than usual. It was only occasionally that he seemed to forget and lapsed into silence. Then Cherry saw the brooding look return to his face.

She could not persuade herself that whatever was troubling him had vanished so easily.

If Dan was worried he gave no indication of it during the next few days. He was punctual at meals, talked of his work and seemed interested in Cherry's recital of each day's events.

There were more letters from Cherry's mother. Mrs. Dixon reported she had gained four pounds. She and her husband were considering a drive into Maine with some friends for a short stay. The letters consisted chiefly of trivial bits of news. There had been a touch of hot weather but now it was gone. Mrs. Dixon hoped Cherry and Dan were both well.

There was a card from Dixie Shannon, bearing a Canadian postmark. Dixie wrote that she was having a glorious vacation and would be sorry to return home.

August proved to be as agreeable as July had been hot and unpleasant. Cherry, reading in news paper society columns that Gretchen Alden and her mother were extending their stay at Lake Louise, that other acquaintances were summering at Newport, attending the race meet at Saratoga or visiting distant resorts, was not in the least envious.

Her life settled into an agreeable calm. Dan, to his amazement, received the long expected raise in salary. It meant $5 a week added to the scanty household budget. They celebrated with a dinner at the Wellington that took the entire first week's $5.

Then, on a Thursday evening Dan arrived home excitedly. "Cherry?" he called. "I've got the most open, you can't guess what's happened!"

She hurried from the kitchen. "No, of course I can't," she said. "What is it?"

"Say, wait till you read Boy, did I run into luck!"

"For a heavy?" Dan Phillips, standing still a minute and trying to wait while she took about it.

He caught her by the shoulder and held her away from him. "What would you say," he began. "If I told you that one of the most magazine writers in the country has promised to read those short stories your boy friend wrote, has promised to criticize them and help him find a market?"

"Oh, Dan—really? Why, that's wonderful! Who is he, Dan? How did it happen?"

Phillips drew himself up in mock dignity. "It's like this, lady," he began. "I was walking down the street—"

"Stop it this minute!" Cherry insisted. "And tell me what's really happened. Who is this writer and how did you meet him?"

"It's not a 'he,'" Dan told her. "It's a 'her.' Brenda Vail—ever read anything of her? To tell the truth neither have I but she's one of the big shots." He rattled off the names of a half-dozen magazines to which Brenda Vail had contributed. She's here on business. Something about some land she owns and wants to sell. Rogers usually does all the literary interviews, you know, but he's on vacation. I didn't have much to do this afternoon and Bates sent me over to talk to Miss Vail. It seems that years ago when she was a kid she had an aunt who lived here. She—I mean Miss Vail, not the aunt—used to spend part of the summers here. It made a pretty fair feature about the famous author coming back to the scene of her childhood—but that's not the important part!

"We got to talking about writing. She's—oh, she's marvellous! The minute you see her you know you're not meeting an ordinary person. She has beautiful red hair and big, sort of grey-green eyes—I don't know how to describe her exactly. There's something about her, though, that's different from other people. She wanted to know if I'd ever written anything except newspaper stuff and when I said I'd tried but hadn't been able to sell anything she asked me if she could see one of my stories. Said she'd read it and maybe she could advise me where to send it. Can you imagine that? A writer like Brenda Vail going to all that trouble for someone she'd never seen before?"

Cherry had been listening intently. "It's fine, Dan!" she assured him. "What are you going to take?"

"Why, I thought I'd show her that yarn about the kids in juvenile court—the one I called 'Kemp's Crime.' Nobody else has seen it. I figured there might be a sort of a jinx on the other story, the one that came back after I sent it out. Miss Vail said if I'd bring it over to the hotel tonight she'd read it."

"You're going to take it to her to-night?"

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Two smart new ensembles are pictured here. The one on left, completed by an all-white felt hat and knitted gloves, shows a new idea of the dotted accessory in the form of a one-sided gilet in green chine with white dots. The accoridian-pleated beach trousers, right, are topped by a blouse of white silkanite and a pale blue felt hat.

LOOKING WELL WHEN YOU ARRIVE.

By a Beauty Expert.

Bad travellers generally contrive to look their worst when they arrive after their journey's end, which is disappointing to say the least of it.

If you are one of those unfortunate beings whom travelling upset give yourself time to take a leisurely meal before you start. Choose something light, yet nourishing, for it is impossible to travel well on a scratch meal, hurriedly consumed.

If the journey is long and tedious, and lunch is not being taken on the train, it is advisable to pack a few tasty sandwiches—ham and egg, tomato and cheese, or potted meat with cress are delicious sandwich mixtures and very sustaining, too.

It is an easy matter to get a glass of milk or milk coffee at one of the station refreshment rooms; thus, with the sandwiches, and a little fruit, a satisfying lunch is provided.

To Relieve Headache.

"Travellers' headaches" are fairly common on a hot day. You will find solidified eau-de-Cologne or lavender a delightfully refreshing way of obtaining relief. Just rub the tube along the forehead and temples, and the result will surprise you.

Nervy, excitable people suffer from moist palms, a horribly uncomfortable condition. Try rubbing the hands with the solidified scent and the stickiness will quickly vanish.

A "freshener" just before reaching the journey's end is the secret of arriving spick and span. First, cleanse the skin with cold cream, removing the superfluous grease with a pad dipped in rosewater. Treated thus the skin looks and feels delightfully fresh, and is in good form for the finishing touches.

In the Handbag.

The toilet essentials take up little room in the handbag—a tube of cold cream and of vanishing cream, a tiny bottle of rosewater, a tube of solidified eau-de-Cologne to remove perspiration, a few cotton wool swabs enclosed in a tiny silken bag, and a tube of brilliantine to freshen up the hair after the final combing.

Then a clean pair of gloves slipped on just before the train is due in and you are conscious of being at your best, a truly satisfying feeling.

Finally, wear new shoes for a time before travelling. Heat causes congestion, and what was a comfortable shoe at the beginning of the journey can be just the opposite at the end of it. And what causes more anxious lines to a face than a tight shoe. Nothing, surely!

COCOA FRUIT

Allow enough shredded suet to fill one and a half gill measures. Chop some figs to make two gills, and allow three gills of breadcrumbs. Beat two eggs, add them, then stir in a gill of cocoa, 6 oz. of brown sugar, half a gill of milk, and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt.

Pour into a buttered mould that has a tight cover and steam for three hours. Serve with chocolate sauce.

TO-DAY'S BEAUTY HINTS.

Eye-shadow must be very skillfully applied, particularly in the day time, if it is not to give an artificial appearance.

Use only a very little colour. Apply it with the tip of the finger, starting from the inner corner of the eye, and moving upwards to the eyebrow. Continue down to the outer corner, but avoid the centre of the eyelid.

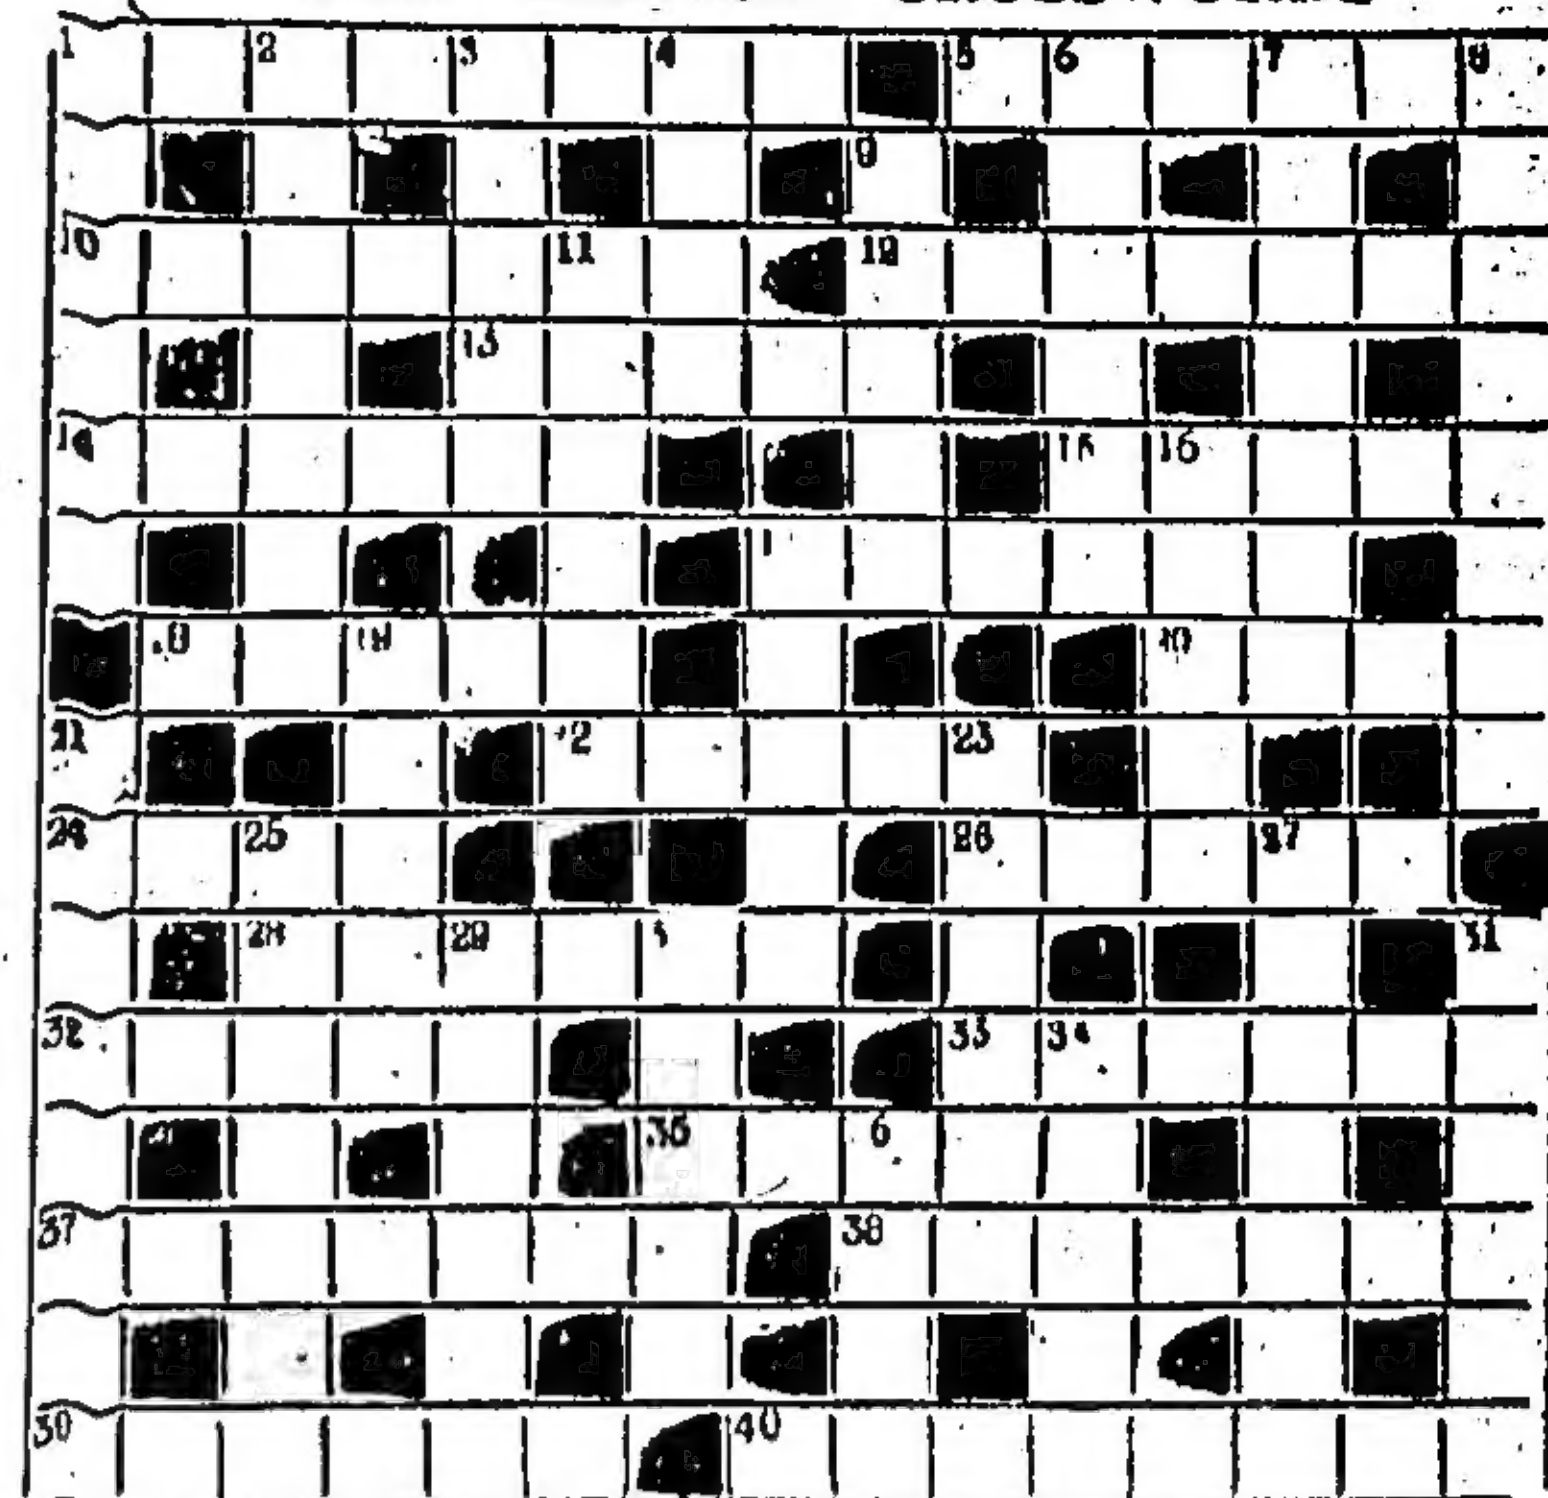

To darken this part of the lid would make the eyes look tired, but if any colour is wanted here a single spot the colour of the eyes may be put exactly in the centre.

Chin-straps which are "tailored" to fit the contour of the face are interlined with astringent herbs. This makes it unnecessary to use any other preparation under the strap. It may be worn while resting or reading, or even during the night if it is not tightly fastened.

Those troublesome blemishes, blackheads, are now being treated at home with little bags which contain specially prepared ingredients. The bags are dipped into very hot water and then pressed to the affected part of the face, and held there for some minutes. Cleansing tissues are then used.

After a cleansing with skin tonic, a pore cream is applied and left on for as long as possible, preferably all night.

PUBLIC CONTROL OF INDUSTRIES

One of the resolutions passed by the Trade Unions Congress now sitting at Newcastle urges, amongst other things, the public control of monopoly industries. This is in line with the study which the trade union movement has been giving to methods for securing the transition from unregulated private enterprise to public ownership and control of essential industries.
In other words, the idea aimed at is what is termed "socialisation" of industry, and it is worth noting that the methods now favoured differ very greatly from the older ideas of the form which this socialisation should take. The change in outlook is largely the result of experience gained in the United Kingdom and abroad.

The Economic Committee of the T.U.C. has long had this question under consideration, and in a report which it has submitted to the Congress an attempt is made to redefine the aims of the movement, in the light of modern conditions.
Particular consideration is given to the public corporation type of organisation—that is, an undertaking controlled by a body appointed by the Government or other public authority under statute. The report anticipates that the change from undiluted private enterprise in many industries will be by way of general governmental regulation leading to operation by public corporations. It has to be remembered, in this connexion, that essential industries and services upon which the very existence of the community depends are already largely unified and subjected to a certain measure of public regulation. Rail, transport, power supply, and coal mining are to some extent regulated by Acts of Parliament; the supply of gas and water is also subject to supervision; whilst communication services are State-owned. Other industries which, though not in the same sense vital to the existence of the community are nevertheless important, are for the most part unregulated, although some of them fall under a large measure of public control during the war.
It does not follow, of course, that socialisation and public control of tion by a Government Department.

There are various methods of securing some measure of public control, examples of which already exist in the case, amongst others, of the B.B.C., the Port of London Authority, the Central Electricity Board, the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, the Suez Canal, the Imperial Airways, the railways, and the coal and gas industries. These methods vary from operation by a public corporation, financial (and therefore directive) participation by the Government in private enterprise, and regulation by the establishment of legislative standards governing such matters as price, quality, compulsory publicity for accounts, and the establishment of supervisory bodies.

Whether, in the future, the country's main industries are privately owned, publicly owned, or a combination of the two, the general interest of the producers of goods and services will exist. The T.U.C. has already, by its endorsement of the proposals of the Meichett-T.U.C. Conference, indicated its support of the project for a National Industrial Council. A body of this kind, whether constituted precisely on the basis suggested by that Conference or on some other basis, would, it is felt, not merely provide an important piece of machinery for the consideration of the general problems of industry, but would also be able to exercise a powerful influence on the general direction of the nation's economic and industrial policy.

Law Not War.

Among the several cases now before the Permanent Court of International Justice at the Hague, there is one between Norway and Denmark of more than ordinary importance. In the first place it has been raised as a result of the application of the so-called Optional Clause. By signing this clause of its Statutes, countries pledge themselves in advance to have recourse to the Court whenever they are engaged in a legal dispute with another country which has also signed the Clause. This is the first time that a case has ever come to fruition as the result of its application, though there have been several occasions on which it has been invoked. It will be remembered that the various League members who are also members of the British Commonwealth have also signed and ratified this particular clause.
They have done so, however, with the reservation that inter-Imperial disputes are not to come to the Court in the first instance. It is for this reason that Great Britain's present dispute with Ireland has not been referred to the Court. In the second place the Danish-Norwegian dispute is of considerable importance in virtue of the fact that it deals with the right of possession in uninhabited portions of the Arctic—and, by analogy, of the Antarctic—regions. The cause of the dispute was the raising of the Norwegian flag by some trappers last year over certain portions of Eastern Greenland. Denmark claims the whole of Greenland, inhabited or uninhabited, as her own. The Norwegians on the other hand, who want to use the inlets on the eastern coast as bases for hunting, fishing and trapping, do not agree. Hence the case before the Permanent Court. On the decision given by the Court which is the only place in the world where nation can sue nation just as individuals sue individuals in the national courts of justice, turns a great deal of interest of Britain.
The ownership of different sectors of the Antarctic continent is far from clear. Australia, New Zen-land and South Africa claim all land lying between themselves and the Pole as their own property. In virtue of this claim they levy toll upon the whalers in the Weddell or the Ross Seas.
They also try to restrict whaling within appropriate limits so as to prevent its extinction. That they are right in this last contention is shown by the fact that at the last League Assembly there was passed a special international convention for the protection of whales. Unfortunately, this has been ratified so far, only by Macao, Nicaragua, the Sudan

the s.s. Carthage included Mr. and Mrs. Primmall, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Overy.

After taking a dose of Jeyes fluid in mistake for Chinese wine, Li Leung-shih, aged 50, of 29, Belchers Street, was removed to the Government Civil Hospital by relatives yesterday. Her condition, however, is not serious.

The local branch of the Chartered Bank has received the following telegram dated 7th instant from the London Office:—"Directors have declared an interim dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 14% per annum, subject to Income Tax."

The Lincolns are coming to Hongkong from Shanghai a month earlier than expected and will arrive in the Colony on October 3rd. In consequence of their earlier arrival, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders will leave for Shanghai early in October.

Early this morning an Indian constable, who was on duty in Kennedy Road, was attracted to house No. 27 by the blowing of police whistles. He noticed a man, evidently a thief, drop from the window to the ground and disappear among the bushes.
Nothing, however, was stolen.

During last week, eight cases of cholera, six from Victoria and two from Kowloon, with five deaths, (one imported); one case of typhoid with one death (imported); and two cases of meningitis, were reported to the health authorities. Deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis totalled 67.
There was a clean bill of health on Tuesday.

Convicted of receiving a quantity of brass stolen from the Tung Tai workshop at Shauiwan, an elderly hawker was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning. It was stated that the metal, which was worth $20, was bought by the hawker for $2.50, the disparity in values being held against the defendant as denoting guilty knowledge. The police proved three previous convictions against the defendant, the last one dating as far as 1911.

COSMIC RIDDLE

By DR. R. A. MILLIKAN

(This article sets out the main points in investigations of the cosmic rays, the study of which may exert a profound if not a determinative influence upon all theories of the evolution of the universe.)

Electricity in the atmosphere discharges an electroscope. Before 1909 rays were known which would discharge an electroscope through metal walls inches thick, but these rays were taken to be radio-active emanations from the earth. In 1909 Gockel took an electroscope up in a balloon to a height of 4 1/4 kilometres and found that its rate of discharge was greater at that height than on earth. This showed that there were rays whose origin was outside the earth either in the upper atmosphere or in outer space.
Several other scientists, besides myself have made investigations to decide between these two possibilities, and I think that to-day the cosmic origin has been generally conceded.

There are three main points about these cosmic rays which now seem to be well established.
The first is that the intensity of the rays is practically uniform day and night. It varies slightly with the barometer as a result of slight variations in the atmospheric blanket induced by the alternate heating and cooling of the gaseous matter through which the rays reach the earth. But the intensity of the rays is quite independent of the position of the sun the Milky Way or other celestial objects.

Origin of the Rays

If the rays came from the sun they would be strongest when the sun was strongest; if from the Milky Way they would be strongest when the Milky Way was overhead; but we find that they are equally as strong at the morning or evening twilight. I conclude that they do not come from the masses of matter in the universe, but from the interstellar spaces.
This is not so unlikely a place of origin as it might have seemed a few years ago, before Bowen at the Norman Bridge Laboratory proved that the common elements, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, carbon, and sulphur, as well as helium, exist out there, giving rise to radiations in regions which may be many light-years away from the stars from which the radiations start.

The second important fact about cosmic rays is that they are not influenced at all by the earth's magnetic field. This I proved by taking very careful and very exact readings with the same sensitive electroscope, first at Pasadena, lat. 34° deg. N., and then at Churchill, Manitoba, lat. 59° deg.
N., the nearest settlement on earth to the north magnetic pole. From the fact that there was no difference in the readings I concluded that before the rays entered the earth's atmosphere they have not traversed any amount of matter which is comparable in thickness with that atmosphere; if they had they would necessarily be mixed with secondary beta rays, which would be directed into the earth most abundantly along the earth's magnetic lines and would therefore enter it in the neighbourhood of the magnetic poles.
If they came even from the re-motest exteriors of stars they would be mixed appreciably with the magnetically deflectable beta rays. That the contrary is the case is another proof that the rays originate in the spaces between the stars.

A Balloon Test

The third fact is that not all the cosmic rays are equally penetrative. My colleague, Cameron, and I, in a balloon flight which went up to 16 1/2 kilometres, through 92 per cent, by weight, of the atmosphere, found that the rate of increase of electric quality in the atmosphere as we went up was not maintained in the upper regions: there are "soft" cosmic rays, which do not penetrate all the way into our atmosphere. This shows that they enter the atmosphere as pure photons, a photon being a fragment of the energy of an atom discharged through space with the velocity of light. The rays that penetrate the farthest finally "settle down" in equilibrium with the secondary rays which they, so to speak, pick up within the earth's atmosphere.
The soft, less penetrative, rays carry about 90 per cent. of the total energy of the cosmic rays which enter the atmosphere. The fact that the rays enter as pure photons and need some distance to "settle down" is another proof.
I think that they originate in interstellar space.

These "soft" cosmic rays have an energy of 25,000,000 volts, being ten times as intense as the radio-active gamma rays of thorium; and they will pass through five times as much water.

An Einstein Equation

What is the source of all this energy? I do not see how it can be, as some think, due to the annihilation of the matter of the stars, because I have shown that the rays do not seem to have any relation to the stars. If one assumes, as others do, cosmic electric fields, one will have, in order to account for the uniformity of intensity of the rays on the earth, to assume uniformity of distribution of the fields with respect to the earth, i.e., practically a geocentric theory of the universe, which has been repugnant to science since 1500 A.D.

For an explanation I turn to an Einstein equation which states with entire definiteness that there is no atomic transformation which can furnish the necessary energy except an atom-building process. I take it that the cosmic rays are the wireless signals of the building in interstellar space of at least some of the heavier elements out of the lighter. We have abundant evidence that all elements are built from hydrogen and helium; the atom of helium is built out of the four atoms of hydrogen; so the building of helium from hydrogen is the commonest atombuilding process.
The energy of this trans formation and other data to be 25,000-000 volts, which is at least a remarkable coincidence.

If this theory of atom-building in the spaces between the stars proves correct, it will obviously have the strongest influence on all future views of the origin and destiny of the universe.

PUNISH THE PUNNERS

By Edward Kelly, Punter.

This insidious punning habit has got to cease.

Let us organise a pun-itive expedition for the punishment of pun-ers. (Sorry!)

There is only one thing to beat them with—brains. Beat them out with pick handles.

We have a friend who as soon as he sees us, becomes a general nuisance. We hone a mental razor every time we meet him, for we know he is going to pun. He was vaccinated with a gramphone needle.

All punners have weak intellects and ingrowing toenails.
That's why we don't like them.
Therefore, they (punnors, we mean) must be ruthlessly exterminated. All punners are skinny, wizened men. It shall be a question of the survival of the fittest.

We met one yesterday. He greeted us with, "What's the Mata, Har! Haven't you been 'Working Girls' yet?" We were a bit haughty.

We said, "Our name is not Harry. We are a married man and, besides, we are a journalist, not a spilor."

Here's one coming now. He looks determined. We can feel it coming on. So it's time to

CHICAGO BREAK-UP IN SEVENTH

Are Then Shut Out in Second Game

New York, Sept. 7. Chicago Cubs, who seem to have been faltering lately, broke completely to-day when they lost a double header to Boston. The collapse started from the seventh inning of the first game when the Braves came from behind to establish a winning lead in a nine-run orgy.

So completely did the Cubs get their tails down that they were shut-out of the nightcap, Cantwell pitching a spotless game. Jordan homered to give Boston a victory. Brooklyn and Pittsburgh shared a double-header. The Pirates won the first in the first inning when they pushed six runs across the plate from five hits. Taylor's home run for Brooklyn did no useful work.

Moore and Ott (Giants), Whitney (Phillies) and Bottomley and Mancuso (Cardinals) obtained home runs in the other games.

OTTAWA PARLEY LEGISLATION

PREMIER STUDYING DOCUMENTS

London, Sept. 7. The Prime Minister is engaged on a careful study of the mass of papers connected with the Ottawa Conference, and is in consultation with his advisers regarding the work of the House of Commons, which when it meets, will deal with the legislation contained in the agreements reached by the Conference. Some days are likely to elapse before any conclusions can be reached as to the reassembly of Parliament.

Mr. Stanley Bruce, Australian Minister in London, who headed the Australian delegation at the Ottawa Conference, arrived in London to-day. A representative of the Dominions Secretary greeted him on arrival.

Mr. Andrew Mellon, United States Ambassador in London, who has been in America on leave, returned to London to-day. He was a fellow-passenger with Mr. Bruce in the White Star liner Olympic from New York.—British Wireless.

SIR HY. WHEELER REAPPOINTED

London, Sept. 7. The Secretary for India has reappointed, for a further period, Sir Henry Wheeler, whose term of office as a member of the Council of India will expire on October 4th. Sir Henry, who entered the Indian Civil Service in 1891, has had a distinguished career and has been a member of the Council of India since 1927.—British Wireless.

FORD SALARIES TO BE CUT

SWEEPING REDUCTION PROPOSED

New York, Sept. 7. Far-reaching salary cuts are anticipated shortly throughout the Ford organization. Only those receiving the "minimum wage rate" are likely to escape the reductions.—Reuter.

A match at the junction of Conduit and May Roads was partly burned by a fire which broke out late last night. The shed belongs to the Tong Kam building contractors of 100, Homsey Road. The cause of the fire is being investigated. Damage to the shed was estimated at $100.

LAWYER LATE IN COURT

REPROVED BY PUISNE JUDGE

Several unusual features were connected with a wages claim which came before the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) in the Supreme Court this morning.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Strellett came into Court, without further instruction from his clients. He had the Court to himself until 10.15 o'clock, when Mr. W. C. Hung, of Deacons, hurried in, minus his client.

A minute later, the Puisne Judge entered. "Who has been keeping the Court waiting?" were his ominous opening words. "This case was due to start at 10 o'clock."

Mr. Hung:—My client delayed me.

The Puisne Judge:—This must not happen. You are not entitled to come into Court at 10.15 when the case is called for 10 o'clock.

Mr. Hung:—I am very sorry, my Lord.

Mr. Strellett:—I have no further instructions in this case, and I am afraid the plaintiff has not turned up.

The Puisne Judge:—Will you call your witnesses, Mr. Hung?

Mr. Hung:—They are not here, my Lord.

Asked by the Puisne Judge what course he proposed to follow, Mr. Hung asked to be allowed to prove the matter in chambers.

The Puisne Judge refused and put the case forward until September 27th.

AN UNDESIRABLE INDIAN

PERSISTS IN COMING TO COLONY

Bisha Singh, an undesirable who has come to Hongkong on several occasions without a valid passport, again appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning when he was sentenced to two months' hard labour.

Mr. T. Murphy (Assistant Director of Criminal Investigation) informed his Worship that the defendant had apparently made up his mind not to stay away from Hongkong. He was fined $10 in January last and an expulsion order was made against him. As he was being taken to the House of Detention, after he had paid his fine, the police found that he had money on him and did not place him in the House as he said he would go to Bangkok. He was allowed to go, but he apparently went to Swatow instead. He came to Hongkong from Canton and was given the option of returning to Canton which he did, but within 48 hours he had returned to Hongkong again.

In sentencing the defendant to two months' hard labour his Worship made another expulsion order against him.

THEFT FROM CITY OFFICE

LOAFER GETS PRISON SENTENCE

Taking advantage of the holidays and his acquaintance with the office boys, a young man named Ng Hung, of no fixed abode, entered the offices of Messrs. Jebson & Co. on Saturday and stole a pair of binoculars belonging to Mr. J. Fernandes.

The article was pawned on Sunday, and when a report was made to the police, a description was circulated. A pawn-broker handed the binoculars to the police and with his assistance the thief was arrested. He was brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning and sentenced to one month's hard labour.

Detective Sergeant J. H. E. Edwards informed his Worship that the defendant had no regular place of abode and usually loafed around Messrs. Jebson's office.

ITALIAN FLIER'S DEATH

BRITISH MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY

London, Sept. 7. Lord Londonderry, Air Minister, has sent a telegram to General Balbo, Italian Air Minister, offering deep sympathy on behalf of the Air Council and the Royal Air Force on the great loss sustained by Regia Aeronautica Italia in the death of the distinguished officer Lieut. Neri, whose aeroplane was shot down over the sea.

FRANCE AND GERMAN EQUALITY

agreement of all the signatories. The publication of the German Note is regarded not unfavourably in French diplomatic quarters, which consider that all cards on the table at the present time is the healthiest policy.

PRESS EXCITED.

It is evident that M. Herriot and the Cabinet are carrying out his counsel of coolness and caution, but the French newspapers are not nearly so complacent.

Typical views are those of the Journal des Debats which says that "the German policy can only lead to war," and La Liberté which declares that "Germany means that though she lost the war, she considers she should have won it."

A DIVERSION?

The Echo de Paris and Quotidien declare that the German government wishes to divert German public opinion from the critical internal political situation by means of an offensive on the disarmament question. A similar view is taken by Excelsior, while Petit Parisien expresses the opinion that from the standpoint of Germany's own interests, the German Government chose an unpropitious moment for such an action.

Figaro advises the Government of the Reich to apply to the League of Nations if it is desirous of obtaining a revision of the Versailles Treaty.

SURPRISING ASSERTION.

Ere Nouvelle declares itself hostile to Germany's claim to equality of treatment in the matter of armaments, the paper actually committing itself to the surprising assertion that equal rights may only be claimed by states which fulfil their obligations and give right a priority to might.

The Socialist Populaire is the only paper to point out that the French Government itself invariably defended the thesis that security is dependent on a strong army, wherefore, the paper maintains, if this thesis is right, it must necessarily hold good not only for one but for all nations of the world.—Reuter and Transocean.

SILVER ON THE DECLINE

FARTHING DROP IN LONDON

The silver market is easier to-day, following a drop of a farthing in London, where China bought and India operated both ways. After the official fixing, the market ruled dull, with America inclined to sell. The market closed quiet, with an uncertain tendency.

In New York, silver declined an eighth, with the market dull. The cross-rate has risen to 3.49½. The Hongkong dollar remains unchanged, with the market very quiet.

CHEF DETAINED

"BARONET'S SON" ON 2/6 THEFT CHARGE.

George Hugo Wilson Sherwood, an hotel chef at Frinton, Essex, who was married there recently, and is stated to have described himself as the third son and heir of an Australian baronet, was detained at Walton-on-the-Naze at the request of the Wolverhampton police.

He was taken to Clacton-on-Sea police station to await the arrival of officers from Wolverhampton. He is described in the warrant as Stoward Alpin, and he is charged with stealing 2s. 6d., the property of Florence Annie Wheelodon, of 62, Dunstable-road, Wolverhampton.

His wife, a still-room assistant at the hotel, whom he had married eight days earlier, was with him when he was arrested.

YOUTH KILLED BY GOLF CLUB

Blow on Back of Neck Causes Death

Bathurst.—A sudden blow on the neck with a golf-club was responsible for the death, on July 23, of Keith Wall, 16-year-old student at St. Stanislaus College.

Medical evidence at the inquest showed that no bones were broken, but that death resulted from shock due to the blow having affected a nerve to the brain.

Wall, a Mudgee lad, had made several vain attempts to hit the ball when Reginald Twentymann, also of Mudgee, offered to instruct him.

He took the club from Wall, and as he swung the club it struck Wall on the side of the neck.

"I'm sorry, Keith!" exclaimed Twentymann, turning to his companion who stood for a couple of seconds with his hand to his face, then swayed and fell.

ALWAYS FATAL.

Twentymann caught him and laid him on the ground. Every effort was made at the College to revive Wall, but when Dr. Salter arrived, the boy was dead.

"In 999 cases out of 1,000 a blow of that description would have proved fatal," said Dr. Salter.

The finding was accidental death.

Serious accidents at golf are rare although two men were killed on Victorian links last year through being struck on the head by a ball.

THE AIR-RECONDITIONING SYSTEM IN THE KING'S THEATRE. HONGKONG.

Modern theatre design includes some kind of system whereby the interior air is properly treated to warm, cool, or purify it as circumstances require.

In the temperature zones, where variations of temperature during the year may vary between zero weather in December and torrid days in June, provisions must be made for both heating and cooling the inside air. In the tropics, variations in temperature are not so great but the troublesome factor is the humidity. All air-reconditioning systems are designed to control the per cent. of moisture or the humidity of the air wherever the system is used, as well as the temperature.

In laying out the air control system for the King's Theatre, a study was made of the prevailing characteristics of Hongkong climate over a long period of time. Data secured from the local weather bureau records over twenty years indicated that the temperature range in Hongkong could be expected to vary between 91°F and 78°F, with a general average of 80°F. The relative humidity or moisture content of the air expressed in a convenient percentage was found to be about 81% at the average temperature of 80°F. Now, relative humidity is the ratio of the actual amount of moisture contained in a unit volume of the mixture to the amount of water this volume holds at the same temperature if it were saturated.

In other words, if the air were "wringing" wet the humidity would be 100%, measured in pounds of water vapour per cubic foot of air. Now, if partially saturated air is cooled at constant pressure, until a certain low temperature is reached, the water will condense out of the air, just as it does during a cloudless night in the temperate zones when we say the "dew falls." This explanation of the theory is essential in order to explain away the popular misconception about air cooling for public gathering places. The primary object is to provide a means of controlling the humidity of the entering air, as well as the actual temperature. Cold wet air would provide a most disagreeable atmosphere but dry even a little below outside temperature is most enjoyable.

The equipment installed in this theatre is designed to supply clean air throughout the house so that, when it is filled with people, the average temperature will be about 79° to 80°F and the relative humidity about 60%. This means that the air inside will have only about one-third as much moisture in it as that contained in the outside air, providing delightfully cool atmosphere in which one can refresh himself even on a hot, sticky day.

To accomplish these three results, viz., purification, drying and cooling of the air, a complete plant has been installed. The essential units are the ammonia compressors, condenser, brine cooler, air washer and circulating fan, all electrically controlled. In practice, cold brine is rapidly circulated through a series of tubes over which the incoming air is drawn by the fan. Jets of water spray on this air, washing out of it all dust and impurities. Its passage over the chilled coils cools it to a point where the water vapour condenses out. It is then drawn through the fan and forced into the duct system, which is installed above the ceiling of the main portion of the house and above the seats under the balcony. The cool air is displaced as the warmer air rises and is finally returned to the washer through the outlets or "Mushrooms" under the seats on the floor. After repeated changes and washings the entire atmosphere inside the theatre will be brought to about the same temperature and humidity. Sudden changes in the outside air, some of which is constantly being introduced into the system, such as increase in moisture content or rise in temperature, will be taken into account and the compensating allowances made in the system to again establish a uniform inside atmosphere.

Some facts about the equipment may be of interest. When nearly 1,100 people are together in a single large room, a very definite amount of heat and products of breathing are given off. Each individual must be supplied with a certain amount of pure fresh air per minute, otherwise, the room soon becomes "stuffy." In this design a total of 39,000 cubic of reconditioned air will be supplied to the ducts overhead which will give every person in the house about 38 cubic feet of air per minute, an amount entirely sufficient for perfect atmospheric comfort.

To purify and cool this amount of air requires the circulation of a very large amount of chilled brine. This is accomplished in a twelve feet horizontal brine cooler. The brine circulates through the brine pipes in the air washer and back through the cooler. The cooling of the brine is accomplished by liquid ammonia evaporating inside the cooler around the brine tubes. As the ammonia evaporates, taking away the heat from the brine, the vapour is drawn into one or two vertical ammonia compressors of the latest design, driven by direct connected synchronous motors taking power from the incoming lines at 350 volts. The compressors are single acting machines, 8" x 8" and 9" x 9", running at 300 R.P.M. The smaller compressor is driven by a 75 H.P. Motor and the larger by a 100 H.P. Motor.

The brine circulating pump is rated at 500 G.P.M. against a 60-foot head, thus giving about 25 lbs. pressure through the brine cooler and coils of the washer. It is direct-connected to a 16 H.P. induction motor running at 1450 R.P.M. The water used in the spray system for purifying and cooling the air is circulated by a pumping unit similar to the brine pump described above. This is pure water drawn from the Colony's water system.

The circulating fan for the house is a positive acting low pressure blower horizontally mounted and running at 875 R.P.M. It is driven by three "V" type rubber belts from a 20 H.P., 3 phase 360-volt, 1450 R.P.M. motor.

The connected cooling of the ammonia vapour in the ammonia condenser requires a relatively large amount of cold water. Study was first made to see if water from the local mains could be used and then re-cooled by means of a cooling pond or tower, but it was found that the amount required and the cooling area necessary entailed prohibitive costs. It was, therefore, decided to use SEA water for cooling the condenser. A pump house was built near Blake Pier. A direct-connected centrifugal pump rated at 400 G.P.M. at a 65-foot head, driven by a 20 H.P. motor puts sea water through 1100 feet of 6" pipes to the condenser from whence it flows back to the sea through the nullah which runs under Pedder Street.

Besides the air-conditioning apparatus described above, the refrigerating room also contains the main control switchboard for the entire theatre and adjoining rooms and offices.

(Following the recent Essay Competition, which proved most popular, the Prizes will be distributed by the Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso, at the King's Theatre, at 5 p.m. on September 10th. The First Prize is a gold medal, the Second Prize a silver medal, while a book will be awarded as the Third Prize. In addition, Complimentary Tickets will be awarded to the competitors who secured the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth places).

THE FIRST-PRIZE ESSAY.

To-day the popularity of Cinema Theatres cannot be denied. The number of theatres throughout the world is increasing daily, and they are becoming so popular that the people now prefer patronizing them to attending the ordinary theatres.

Not only do the proprietors of Cinema theatres provide their patrons with the productions of the most famous screen stars, but the greatest attention is paid to ways and means for ensuring the comfort of their customers, particularly during the hot and sultry Summer months of the year.

In order that patrons may sit and enjoy the masterpieces of the leading screen artists in comfort, the most up-to-date methods are being tried and adopted for cooling and purifying the air inside the Cinema Theatres.

In the majority of existing theatres the atmosphere is hot, unhealthy and suffocating, and the only methods of cooling in use are ventilating fans. Owing to the crowded state of the theatre, the air remains hot and polluted till the audience disperses.

The air which we breathe is the source of life and serves as a carrier of heat and moisture to or away from our bodies; and the heat of humid surroundings is most uncomfortable and depressing, as everybody who has experienced a Hongkong Summer well knows.

In the past, little was known of the evil of breathing "used-up" air, and such a state of the atmosphere was termed "musty" by theatre-goers of those days and was suffered by them without complaint. However, more recently, theatre owners began to realise the importance of ventilating theatres by allowing the foul air to escape and fresh air to enter. Another method of purifying the atmosphere was the drawing out of the foul air by means of centrifugal fans in the roof of the building, fresh air entering through the doors and windows.

Later came the idea of cooling the air. The first system tried was the Carrier System, which cooled the atmosphere by means of ice. There are, however, certain drawbacks to this method, as the building must necessarily be kept air-tight and if fresh air be allowed to enter it interferes with the cooling process, which must then be repeated, and besides, there is as much moisture in the atmosphere as before and the relative humidity is higher.

The latest method of air-conditioning, as installed at the King's Theatre, provides for a constant temperature and constant state of humidity, besides ensuring a continuous supply of pure, cool and well-oxygenated air. This new system keeps the air inside the theatre relatively pure and wholesome and at a temperature of about 78 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 65% to 65% in Summer, and at a temperature of about 70 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 35% to 40% in Winter.

The fresh outside air is drawn through an opening by a fan and then passed into the Spray Chamber, where it is washed and cooled to the desired temperature by jets of water from the "refrigerator" of the Spray Chamber. The air, having been cooled to a temperature of about 45 degrees Fahrenheit, is passed out of the Spray Chamber to the Mixing Chamber where 75% of conditioned air is allowed to mix with 25% of the warm air from the theatre. The air is now correctly cooled and conditioned to a temperature of approximately 75 degrees Fahrenheit and is allowed to pass into the body of the theatre in a "blanket" from the ceiling and other points of the theatre, providing a continuous supply of pure, fresh, cool air, till the performance is over and the audience disperses.

Under every seat in the theatre there are perforated openings, through which the used air inside the theatre is continuously being drawn off and passed out of the theatre.

After each performance, and after the floor has been swept and cleaned, all exits are thrown open and the old air is entirely removed in about two minutes by starting the small "exit" fans and the three big centrifugal fans which are installed in the roof of the building for this purpose. This ensures a supply of pure, fresh and cool air at every performance, under most sanitary conditions.

Why not Investigate?

YOU HAVE EVERYTHING TO GAIN---
... | AND NOTHING TO LOSE

Dollars planted wisely to-day will grow over and over again, they will yield an all-the-year-round crop. But if your invested savings are earning less than 8% interest they should be given a new task master . . . they must earn that extra third.

It costs nothing but a little time to learn the true facts of the investment possibilities offered by China Realty Company today. Now is the time and opportunity! $100 or more can start to earn an assured 'second income' for you, an income one third more than is offered by many less secure investments.

If you have idle dollars, get them to work earning 8% at once. Why not call in and discuss this with us now. It will amply repay you in the months to come.

During 1931 we negotiated mortgages amounting to $19,194,868 on property valued at over $35,550,000. It will be thus seen that the amount loaned was less than 54% of the market value of the property, leaving a margin of security wide enough to cover the most remote contingency. Of this $19,194,868 of mortgages, $11,915,311 were assigned to investors. The average rate of interest was 9.33%, and our commissions amounted to $146,825, or 0.765%. It will be clearly seen by these figures that on the basis that this company operates, it can easily afford to pay 8% interest on the volume of the business of 1931 and yet make a profit of $399,525.00 on the mortgage department alone! These debentures have an additional security of $5,000,000 capital.

During the past 20 years, we have negotiated mortgages amounting to more than $100,000,000.00 and so accurate has our judgment been that not one cent of interest or principal has ever been lost.

This is No. 31 of a series of advertisements issued to interest Hongkong investors in the liberal investment opportunities offered by the China Realty Company, Shanghai.

the lobes of her ears and to her lips. Then she stepped back, surveying herself in the mirror.

The effect must have been satisfying. She was a tall, slender woman. The black of the dress contrasted strikingly with the mass of auburn hair that waved about her face and was fastened in a knot low on her neck. There was too much of that hair for the sleek, fashionable outline but it was undoubtedly distinctive. Brenda Vail was not beautiful. There was about her, however, a manner that invariably brought her attention. Perhaps it was the craving Brenda Vail herself had for attention.

She selected exotic costumes, wore her glorious hair in a way that was definitely not fashionable, challenged the world to look at her—and it did!

There came a ring from the telephone in the next room. Miss Vail hurried forward.

"Yes?" she said crisply. Immediately her voice changed. "Oh, it's you!" The words came softly. "Yes, of course, I've been waiting for you. Won't you come up?"

The room had been furnished as a living room. Hastily Brenda Vail pulled a small chair nearer the chaise longue that stood near the window. She adjusted the pillows, stepped back and eyed them critically.

A moment later she was opening the door.

"Good evening, Mr. Phillips," she smiled. "It's so good of you to come. I've been wondering what I was to do with myself this whole lonely evening. Won't you come in?"

Dan entered. He seemed a trifle embarrassed. "I hope you don't mind," he said, "I took you at your word and brought that story for you to read."

"But I'm delighted! Here, won't you take this chair? You'll find cigarettes in the box. That's right. Make yourself comfortable."

She sank to the chaise longue, laid the manuscript casually on a table behind her.

Miss Vail raised a cigarette in a long, ebony holder to her lips and expelled a curling wreath of smoke. The grey-green eyes narrowed.

"Later," she said, "I'll read your story. Just now I'm interested in you. You know, Mr. Phillips, I think that I like you very much."

LONDON CONCERNED.

BOYCOTT DECISION AROUSES DISAPPOINTMENT

London, Sept. 7.
Keen disappointment has been aroused in well-informed circles in London by the Chinese Guild's decision in declaring the anti-Japanese blockade, despite the hopes aroused by the appeal by the Mayor of Shanghai, Mr. Wu Teh-chien, for conciliation.

Far Eastern commercial quarters are of the opinion that the boycott is primarily of Chinese domestic concern as long as it remains a boycott, but apprehension is expressed lest a similar mistake to that made last year should lead to seizures and the burning of Japanese goods, which would result in the reopening of last December's situation at Shanghai.

Meanwhile, interest in Manchuria has been quickened by the announcement that three British subjects have been captured by bandits.

UNSUSPECTED CONSTIPATION

Nine out of ten of us—whether we know it or not—are martyrs to partial constipation. For it is a fact that an overloaded and neglected food canal will quickly and inevitably lead to a multitude of ills, the true cause of which we rarely recognise. The sole purpose of Eno's 'Fruit Salt' is to check this evil—safely and harmlessly. Acting in the same way as those natural salts which should be—but are not—present in modern diet, Eno gets rid of all waste matter before it has time to stagnate and become poisonous. Take Eno first thing every morning.

ANTI-JAPANESE INCIDENTS.

STUDENTS RAID SHOP IN MONGKOK DISTRICT

Two anti-Japanese demonstrations took place in the Mongkok district last night, and as a result, extra precautions were taken by the Police to prevent an outbreak, particularly as it was about this time last year that the Japanese were subjected to serious molesting. The incidents occurred in two adjacent sundry stores in Shanghai Street in one of the most densely populated areas of the district and attracted much attention. About 4 p.m. some students were attracted by the wares of a hawk who was displaying metal goods, which were alleged by the students to be of Japanese manufacture.

The students surrounded the hawk and demanded to know the origin of the goods. They were informed that the articles had been purchased from 576 and 577 Shanghai Street. To these two shops the crowd went and threw several articles into the streets. Police, however, had gained information of the affair and were soon on the scene. The crowd of youths was dispersed without any serious damage being caused.

Precautionary measures were taken by the Police to prevent a recurrence of last year's incidents but up to a late hour last night no further trouble was reported.

ANGLICAN CHURCH CRISIS.

REPORTED DEPLETION IN CANADIAN FUNDS

Winnipeg, Sept. 7. A crisis in the affairs of the Anglican church in Canada has arisen through the depletion of $300,000 in the Endowment Fund belonging to Rupert's Land province. A special conference of prominent laymen has been convened in order to consider the situation, and Mr. John Macbray, former Bursar of the University of Manitoba, who also had a certain amount of Anglican funds entrusted to his care, has been arrested on a charge of embezzling $47,000. He is, however, too ill to appear in court.

Archbishop Matheson, former Primate of all Canada, states that the affair will seriously affect the church finances throughout Canada. His own savings, amounting to $9,000, have also been lost. The Endowment Fund of the University of Manitoba also lost $2,000,000.—Reuter.

PRISON TRAGEDY

EUROPEAN WARDER SHOT AT LAICHKOK

Mr. Michael Rooney, aged 38 years, a warder at the Laichikok Prison, died yesterday as a result of a wound in the head, caused by a revolver. It is reported that members of the prison staff heard a shot in one of the offices about 1.30 p.m., and rushing to the scene found Mr. Rooney. A revolver was lying nearby.

Mr. Rooney was immediately taken to the Kowloon Hospital, where he died at 3 p.m.

NEW CARGO VESSEL.

LATEST ADDITION TO M.B.K. FLEET IN PORT

Representing the last word in modernity, the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha motor vessel Nachisan Maru is moored in port on her maiden voyage to Hongkong, and is discharging a full shipment of cement from Japan before proceeding to Bangkok. The Nachisan Maru was launched in December last at the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha dockyard at Tama. She is a vessel of 2,667 tons, registered in Kobe, and has been employed since early this year on the Kobe-Bangkok run. The present voyage is, however, the first one to Hongkong. Propulsion power is obtained from Diesel engines, also manufactured in Japan, and the ship is capable of a speed of 13 knots. She was built especially for the Bangkok cargo trade, and the two twin-masts and electric winches assure speedy loading and discharging of cargo. Although primarily a cargo ship, accommodation is provided aboard the Nachisan Maru for first class passengers. Modern features, not usually associated with cargo vessels, are a key-note in the design of the latest addition to the M.B.K. fleet. The captain's and officers' quarters are roomy and comfortable, lavatories fitted out, while ample space is also provided for the crew. The Nachisan Maru is under the command of Captain S. Ushijima.

A tragic flood of lead! Madly he fired round after round into the wings of the ship of the air that bore the insignia of the enemy.
How was he to know that the pilot was the pal he believed dead—the very pal he had been avenging!
It's the most stirring climax the screen has great! And it's but one of a host of lowering moments in a mighty picture that will carry you over the clouds to a thousand thrills. Actually filmed higher than the air.
It's the picture which thrilled Broadway for more than a year. It's the picture London, Paris and all the big cities of the world hailed as the greatest screen masterpiece. It has won a huge volume of praise.

HOCKEY TRIAL

PROBABLES BEAT POSSIBLES
FIVE TO TWO

The "Possibles v. Probables" trial hockey match for the purpose of selecting a team to play the All India Olympic Team, which is shortly visiting Hongkong, was held at Sookun-poo yesterday. The play generally was not of a very high standard, many of the players being slow to seize opportunities in front of goal.

The Probables, were the more aggressive, and deserved their win of five goals to two.

Several position changes were made during the game. In goal, Cdr. Higham (Navy) and Capt. Gore (I.M.S.) played well, both dealing with some difficult shots. There was little to choose between the halves, although W. A. Reed (Club) was prominent on many occasions. In the forward lines W. E. Williams (Club) G. Singh (Radio) and Jali (Jats) at right inner, centre and left inner respectively for the Probables were outstanding.

Goals were scored for the probables by G. Singh (2), Williams (2) and Nur Khan, and for the Possibles by Divett and Francis.

R.A.S.C. Team to Play
Mule Corps

The following have been selected to play for the R.A.S.C. against the Hongkong Mule Corps in a friendly hockey match, at the Marina ground, Kowloon on Saturday at 5 p.m.: Pte. Funnell; S/Sgt. Marshall and Dvr. Whitley; Dvr. Powell; Pte. Buckland and Lieut. Mayell; L/Cpl. Spinn, Sgt. Tipple, Cpl. Barlow, Pte. Lambey and Dvr. Gray. Reserves: Pte. O'Connor, Pte. Craiger, Cpl. Culitt.

Radio Club Team

The Radio Sports Club hockey team will meet the "Ingenitos" in a friendly match to-morrow afternoon at 5.30 at Caroline Hill, the eleven being—Sargun Singh; Parduman Singh, J. S. Grewal; Prem Singh, M. H. Hussain, Mohinder Singh; Harbhajan Singh, Guruchan Singh (Captain), Avtar Singh, Kalwant Singh and Attar Singh. Reserves: Jaggeet Singh and Man Singh.

MUKDEN PERILS

BRITISH LADY AND TWO MEN CAPTURED

Mukden, Sept. 7.
Bandits early this morning surrounded and captured a party of Britons, consisting of Mrs. Pawley, Mr. Charles Corkran, and Mr. Duncan McIntosh, while they were riding on the racetrack.

All are employees of the Asiatic Petroleum Company's branch at Newchwang.

Later Mr. McIntosh escaped and gave the alarm, and fifty soldiers are at present pursuing the bandits.

ARMY MEN SWIM
HARBOUR.

CAMPBELL OF THE S.W.B.
WINS RACE

Leading almost from the dive in, Private Campbell of the South Wales Borderers won the Army cross harbour race yesterday. His time of 25 minutes 23 seconds is a record for this particular race, although it is several minutes outside the record time for the open race.

It was exactly 10 minutes past five when the starter shouted "Go" and 120 swimmers dived from the Police Pier. For the first hundred yards they were bunched together, but slowly the more powerful swimmers took the lead.

Private Campbell gradually forged ahead but always within striking distance was Private Jamieson of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. The course was marked on both sides by lines of rowing skiffs and motor-boats under the command of Major Lochner. They kept a constant look-out for tired swimmers but were only called upon twice.

Every known stroke was employed. The crawl, backstroke, sidestroke, breaststroke, and the trudgen were all in evidence.

The team competition was won by the Royal Artillery (92 points), followed by the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (104), the South Wales Borderers (123), and Small Units (383).

The Order of Finishing:

The first 10 to finish were:

Private Campbell (S.W.B.) 25 mins. 23 seconds.

Private Jamieson (A.S.H.) 27.31.

Private Kildea (A.S.H.) 28.52.

Private Lee (A.S.H.) 29.15.

Gunner Harris (R.A.).

Bombardier Harris (R.A.).

Gunner Hyde (R.A.).

Private Blair (A.S.H.).

Private Whillans (S.W.B.).

L/Cpl. Southland (S.W.B.).

The times of the first four are better than the time of Gunner Forrester, who won the race last year in 31 minutes 6 seconds.

Private Jamieson, who finished second this year, was third in last year's event, when he took 32 minutes.

Several swimmers were dragged from the water at the finish, suffering from exhaustion, but they quickly recovered.

Raid on Church

Mukden, Sept. 7.
It has been reported that a party of bandits attacked the Catholic Church at Tuchuan, to the west of Tsunan, on Monday, and plundered the building.

Two Canadian missionaries, who desperately resisted the bandits, were overpowered.

Japanese troops were summoned to the scene and dispersed the marauders. —Reuter's Special.

DENIED VENGEANCE

CHANG'S SON ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Peking, Sept. 7.
Disappointed because his mother refused to allow him to avenge the death of his father, the elder son of General Chang Tsung-chang, assassinated on Friday, attempted suicide here to-day.

The boy desired to go to Tsinan, where his father was shot, but was prevented from doing so by his mother. He then seized a revolver and pointing it at his head, pulled the trigger.

Fortunately however, just as the charge exploded, an attendant seized his arm, and the bullet, instead of entering his head, lodged in his leg.

The wound is not serious, and the boy is now under the care of an army doctor. —Reuter's Special.

FLAMES ON SHIP

FIRE IN HOLD OF B & S
STEAMER SUIYANG

Shanghai, Sept. 7.
While going to Tsingtao from Shanghai, with a cargo of tea and bales of paper, a fire was discovered in the hold of the China Navigation Company's Steamer Suiyang, of 2,550 tons, early this afternoon, near Woosung.

The vessel returned to her wharf, where fireboats, which had been summoned by wireless, fought the blaze.

The fire was totally extinguished by 9.26 p.m. —Reuter's Special.

RIGHT OF DEFENCE.

EAST PRUSSIA SAID TO BE MENACED

Berlin, Sept. 7.
Von Schleicher, in a speech at military manoeuvres in East Prussia, reiterated that Germany must be given the same right to arm as other nations, as a protection against her neighbours, adding that East Prussia was specially threatened.

The Reich, he said, was ready to defend it to the last man. —Reuter's Special.

CHINA'S ELEVENTH-HOUR APPEAL TO LEAGUE

To Prevent Japan's Recognition of Manchukuo Government

VOLUNTEER MENACE TO CHANGCHUN

HURRIED DEFENCE MEASURES

MOBILISATION ORDERS

JAPANESE RUSHING REINFORCEMENTS

Peking, Sept. 8.

Changchun, the capital of the Manchukuo Government, is in a state of considerable excitement. Chinese "Volunteers" operating in powerful force in Kirin Province have overcome all opposition and are now approaching the city from several directions.

All Japanese and Manchukuo troops in the vicinity have been mobilised against the menace, according to Chinese reports.

The city has been divided into special defence areas and Japanese reports state that the "Manchukuo" Government have ordered General Chang Hui-peng to take five detachments of troops towards Kirin for the protection of the railway.

It is also reported that as the result of a joint Japan-Manchukuo military conference, the whole area is to be divided up into special districts for defence against the Volunteers.

REINFORCEMENTS BEING SENT.

The menace to Changchun today appears to be grave. General Muto, the new Japanese commander-in-chief, is reported to be sending large reinforcements from the Peking-Mukden Railway to Changchun.—Reuter.

SCHENK ARREST SEQUEL

FEDERAL LAW NOT VIOLATED

Washington, Sept. 7.

It is announced today that the Department of Justice is withdrawing from the proceedings against Clarence Schenk and the two other men who were arrested for alleged complicity in the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby. This step has been taken on the grounds that they have not violated any Federal laws.

The investigator appointed by the Department has reported that his enquiry does not disclose any connexion between the Lindbergh kidnapping and that of Schenk.—Reuter.

DANUBE CUSTOMS UNION

FRANCE ABANDONS SCHEME

Strass, Sept. 7.

It is understood that France has abandoned the scheme for a Danubian Customs Union. Hence no definite schemes along these lines have been submitted to the conference here which is being held as a result of the Lausanne Agreement for the purpose of devising a means of economic and financial restoration of Eastern and Central Europe.—Reuter.

SWEEPING REDUCTION PROPOSED

FURTHER TALK OF SANCTIONS

STRONG NOTE TO TOKYO AT SAME TIME

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

SHANGHAI, SEPT. 8.

A LAST-MINUTE APPEAL TO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO TAKE STEPS TO PREVENT JAPANESE RECOGNITION OF THE MANCHUKUO GOVERNMENT IS TO BE MADE BY THE NANKING GOVERNMENT.

According to Chinese reports, in view of Japan's reported intention of extending recognition before September 15, the Chinese Government will appeal to the League "to take effective action to prevent such a breach of China's sovereignty and territorial integrity."

It is also stated, says Reuter, that a strong protest will be lodged with the Tokyo Government against her proposed recognition of Manchukuo and against the recently concluded Manchukuo-Japanese Defence Alliance.

In a leading article on the possibility of Japan withdrawing from the League, the China Times asks if Japan is to be propitiated to avoid such a course or whether sanctions will be enforced to uphold the League's prestige?

"PREPOSTEROUS ASSERTION"

Japan has at last thrown down the gauntlet against the conscience of the whole world, declares Dr. Lo Wen-kun, China's Foreign Minister. The long speech by Count Uchida laid bare Japan's intentions so completely that she need not seek any pretext in the further prosecution of her scheme of aggression in China. Ignoring the entreaties for peace of all humanity, defying the League of Nations and any other machinery of peace, and disregarding her obligations assumed under solemn international treaties, Japan has told the world, in effect, that she has the right to invade the territory of China, to seize the three eastern provinces, to set up a puppet government and call it an independent state and, finally, to shape and control its destiny until Japan and her puppet become one political entity in name as well as in fact.

MEDIEVAL MILITARISM.

Count Uchida's thesis is, indeed, a tale of medieval militarism disguised in twentieth century language.

Japan has pleaded self-defence for all her acts of aggression, and she argues that the exercise of the right of self-defence may extend beyond the territory of the Power exercising that right and that the Kellogg-Briand Anti-war Pact does not prohibit a signatory Power from availing itself of that right at its own discretion. It is a highly preposterous assertion that the puppet organisation created and supported by Japan has achieved its independence through the spontaneous will of the Manchurians and that the Nine-Power Treaty does not forbid any separatist movement in China nor recognition by Japan of any new state formed as a result of such a movement.

The whole world, says Dr. Lo, knows that in the three eastern provinces there has never been any separatist movement from within but there has been an aggressive and imperialistic movement from without. It is the Japanese militarists who have brought all the theatrical paraphernalia to Manchuria and set up on the stage a bogus government styled by the epithet of the independent state of Manchukuo.

FANCIFUL IDEAS.

Japan has now defied the whole world—the League of Nations, the Anti-War Pact, the Nine-Power Treaty and the other international commitments and, finally, the public opinion of mankind. She is labouring under the fanciful idea that she could realise her dream of military conquest by rushing matters through and creating faits accomplis before the world pronounces its final judgment. But the enlightened nations of the world have already declared that they will not recognise a situation brought about by violence.

CAPTURE OF A. P. C. EMPLOYEES SON OF MAJOR-GENERAL: VIGOROUS LONDON CRITICISM

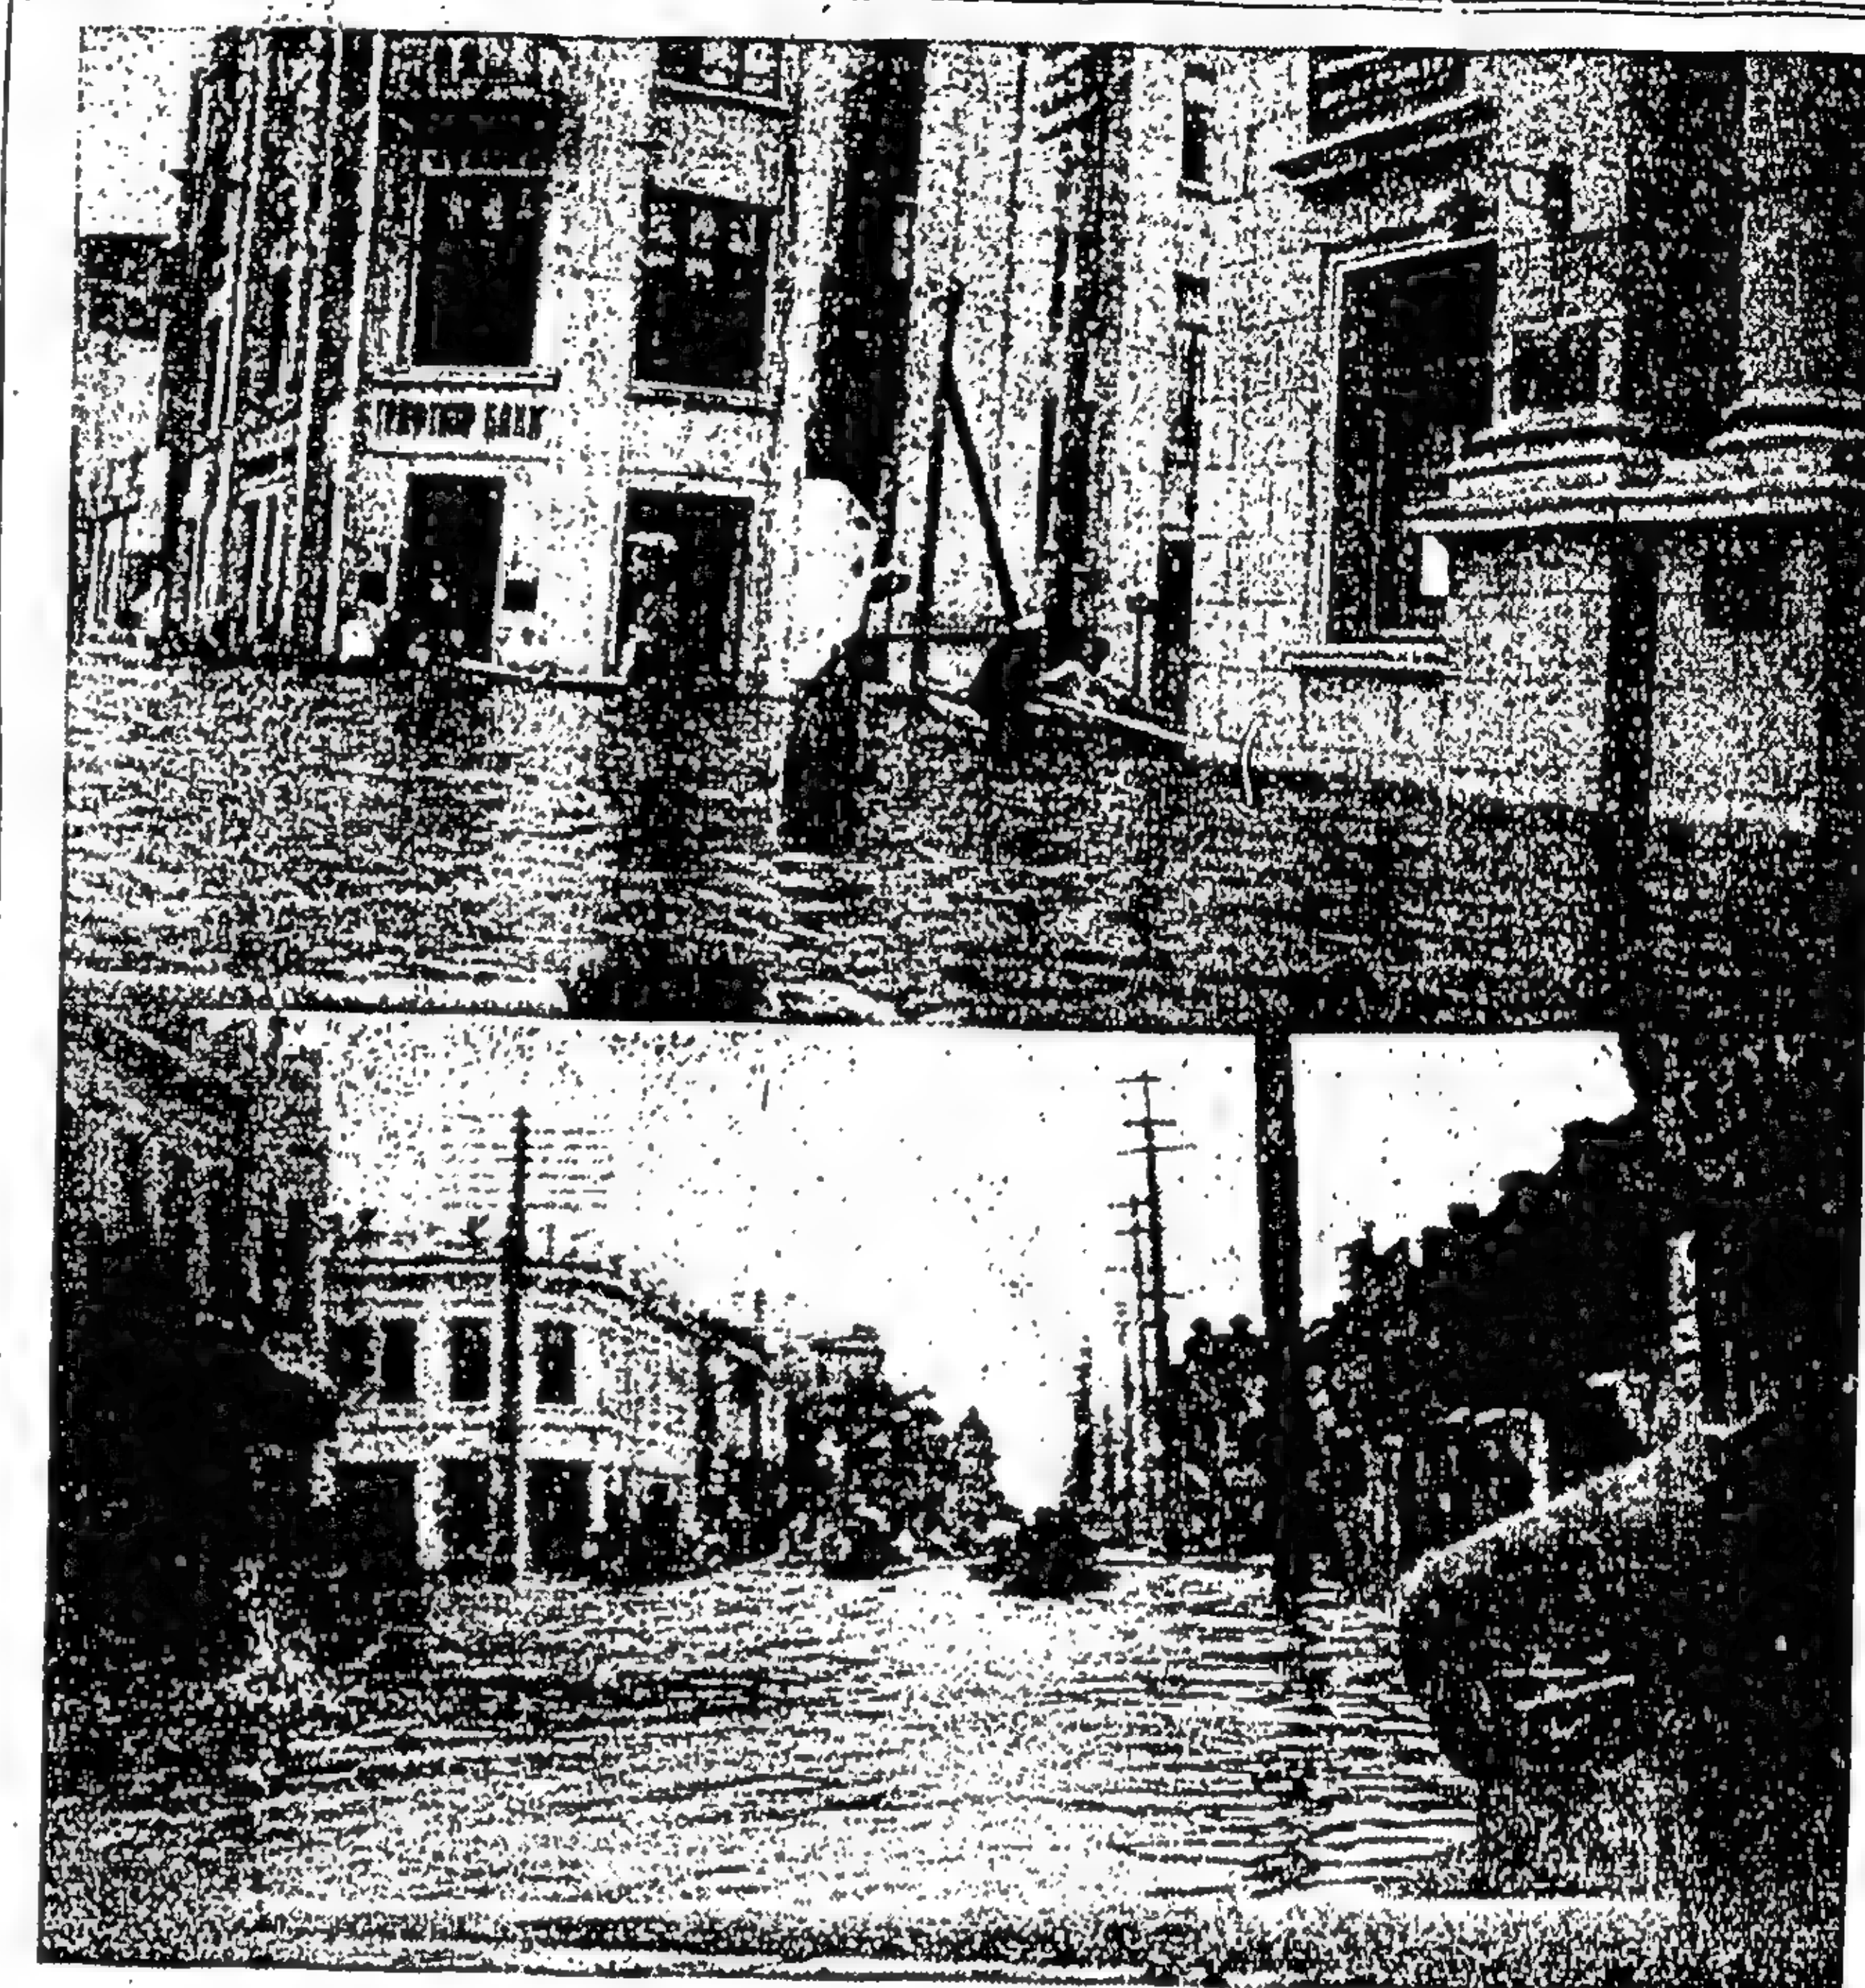

London, Sept. 8.

Major-General Sir Charles Corkran, formerly General Officer Commanding the London District, has received confirmation of the report that his eldest son, together with two other employees in the Asiatic Petroleum Company at Newchwang, Manchuria, one of whom was a lady, have been captured by bandits while taking riding exercise.

Corkran's male companion

"If foreigners are not safe at Yingkow, they can scarcely be considered safe anywhere in Manchuria," declares the News-Chronicle in an editorial, dealing with the capture of Mr. Charles Corkran and Mrs. Pawley. "If the Manchurian Government cannot answer for their security at Yingkow, it must almost have ceased to be worthy of the title at all."

CAR DIVES INTO RIVER

NEW TERRITORIES MISHAP

FITTERS' NARROW ESCAPE

A somewhat unusual motor accident occurred in the New Territories yesterday when a car which was being towed fell over a bridge into the Shing Mun River.

Luckily, the incident was not attended by any serious casualty, although two Chinese fitters who were in the vehicle had a fortunate escape from drowning.

It appears that shortly before noon, Mr. T. H. G. Brayfield was towing a car into Kowloon from the New Territories and had reached the Shing Mun River bridge when the vehicle in the rear ran over the bank and toppled into the stream below.

PINNED UNDERNEATH.

The car landed in the riverbed upside down, and the two fitters who were in it were for a time pinned underneath the vehicle. Fortunately, however, neither received any serious injury, both being soon extricated from their perilous position very little the worse for their experience.

JAPANESE MINISTER IN NANKING

VIEWS ON MANCHURIA DISPUTE.

Nanking, Sept. 8.

The new Japanese Minister to China, Mr. Ariyoshi, has arrived in Nanking. Interviewed by Reuter, he said that as the Manchurian dispute concerned Japan and China alone, it appeared only reasonable that they should consider that direct settlement was not only possible, but logical.

He denied, however, that he carried instructions to initiate negotiations with the Chinese Government.—Reuter.

8 GOALS SHARED

London, Sept. 7.

Aston Villa and Portsmouth, leaders of the First Division, both conceded their first point to-day, Sunderland holding the Villa while Chelsea shared eight goals with Pompey.

Birmingham registered their first win of the season. In the Second Division, Bradford City made easy work of West Ham, who drop to the foot of the table as a result of Charlton's draw at Manchester.

Results and League tables to date are appended:

THE SHATIN MYSTERY

FOUL PLAY NOW FAIRLY CERTAIN

HEAD WOUND ON MAN'S BODY

Police investigations following the discovery of a body protruding from an old grave at Yuen Chau Kok village, in the Shatin district, have destroyed the superstition theory advanced yesterday, it being fairly certain that the victim met his death by violence.

It will be recalled that two grass-cutters saw a foot protruding whilst at work on the hillside, and reported the matter to the police. At the time, it was not known whether the body was that of a man or woman.

Yesterday, the local police exhumed the body and it was then disclosed that it was that of a man.

DEAD FOR SOME DAYS.

There was a wound on the head, about six inches in length, whilst a piece of rope was tightly knotted around the neck. The body was in an advanced state of decomposition.

So far, nothing is known regarding the identity of the victim or of the circumstances under which he met his death, but it is believed that he must have been murdered and his body hidden in the old grave by those responsible.

LATE NEWS.

THE WORLD CRISIS

ECONOMIC CONFERENCE MAY BE DELAYED

U.S. PROBLEM

WAR DEBT RESUMPTION ISSUE ARISES

London, Sept. 8.

Little surprise will be caused if the World Economic Conference to complete the work of the Lausanne and Ottawa gatherings is not held in November, as intended, despite the fact that British official quarters declare that they are unaware of any necessity for a postponement.

The coincidence of the presidential election in the United States will be a probable reason for a postponement until the New Year although "full steam ahead to the conference" remains the policy of the United States Government, according to administrative circles in Washington.

NO DIFFICULTY.

Britain is particularly anxious that the Conference shall not miscarry and if a postponement appears opportune no difficulty will be raised.

Europe in the meantime is wondering how it stands owing to the Lausanne War Debt Agreement marking time pending a definitive settlement with America.

Allied repayments to the United States are due to be resumed on December 15, as the Hoover Moratorium ended in June, but no provision has been made in any of the European countries budgets do meet these commitments.

Britain is due to pay £35,000,000 and does not desire an extension of the moratorium.

WASHINGTON RUMOURS.

Rumours are current in Washington, however, that other European debtors will not meet the December instalments, and this has led economic authorities in the American capital to assert that default would have most harmful effects from the viewpoint of world economic welfare.

Though the United States has stipulated the exclusion of tariffs, reparations and war debts from the agenda of the World Economic Conference, well-informed circles in Washington expect that war debts will be seriously discussed privately at the Conference.—Reuter.

BUS CRASHES INTO WALL

UNKNOWN MAN TAKES IT FOR DRIVE

In a report made to the police, Wong Ham, a licensed bus driver of the Hongkong Hotel, states that whilst his vehicle was left unattended at the terminus at the University some-one drove it down the steep slope of Third Street, causing the vehicle to crash into a wall.

Wong Ham states that at 3.15 p.m. yesterday he had left the bus (No. 63) at the junction of Bonham and Pokfulam Roads and on returning after a short time he found it to be missing. He was informed that a man had driven it down Third Street. On investigation, he found that the bus

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A great many players find it difficult to recognize a squeeze play and undoubtedly the most difficult of all squeeze plays to recognize is the one known as the Vienna coup.

I class the following as the best played hand of the Conneau Lake, Pa., tournament. It involves an interesting Vienna coup play and was played by O. E. Emrich, a member of the Western Reserve team of Cleveland which won the contract team-of-four championship. In addition, Mr. Emrich has the high cumulative percentage for the tournament. While Mr. Emrich's bidding at times may be classed as bold, he is one of the best card players in the country.

The Bidding.

Mr. Emrich sat in the South and opened the contracting with one club. West passed and North bid one diamond. Mr. Emrich's next declaration was three no trump.

The Play.

West's opening lead was the eight of spades which East won with the ace. East returned the ten of spades which Mr. Emrich refused to cover. The six was continued which West won with the queen. Mr. Emrich discarding a club from dummy.

The king of spades was cashed by West and another club discarded from dummy. Mr. Emrich dropping a heart.

East and West had taken the first four tricks, and West was in the lead. It looked as though he were bound to make either the king of hearts or the king of clubs.

However, he realized that if he were to lead away from either king, the declarer might make his contract. Therefore West selected the lead of the eight of diamonds which Mr. Emrich, in the South, won with the jack.

After West's play of the eight of diamonds, Mr. Emrich marked him for both missing kings. He decided not to try what might prove to be a losing finesse, but selected the play known as the Vienna coup and now played his ace of hearts, deliberately setting up West's king. He then played the queen of hearts, and the queen was overtaken by dummy's king. Mr. Emrich then led four straight diamonds from dummy. It was immaterial what East played. Mr. Emrich discarded his jack of hearts and three clubs. This left him holding the ace and queen of clubs, while dummy held the queen of hearts and the king of clubs. West was able to discard the nine of hearts and the four and ten of clubs, but on the fourth diamond he was squeezed.

He held the king of hearts and the king and queen of clubs. If he discarded the king of hearts, dummy's queen was good, so he played the queen of clubs and now all that Mr. Emrich had to do was to lead a club from dummy on to with the ace and capture West's king and the last trick was won in his own hand with the queen of clubs to make his contract.

EXPERIENCE IS A GREAT TEACHER.

Especially in bringing up children.

Mothers and fathers too will no doubt recall the difficulties they had with their first child. There is so much to learn about the best way of keeping the child healthy and happy. Failing actual experience of your own the next best guide is the experience of others. One of the most difficult times is the teething period.

At this trying time there is no friend like Baby's Own Tablets, the remedy specially designed to meet the health-needs of babies and young children. Read the following letter from a grateful parent.

"Experience is a great teacher" writes Mrs. (Rev.) M. E. Conron, of 187, Marlboro St. Brantford, Canada. "When our first baby arrived I knew nothing about Baby's Own Tablets. When baby began to cut his teeth he was cross and feverish and would not take his food. We lost much sleep and I began to get quite exhausted. One day when my husband, who is a clergyman, was out visiting, a lady advised us to try Baby's Own Tablets. We certainly found they worked wonders. In twenty-four hours we had a different baby. Now we have a family of six little ones with whom we have used no other medicine but Baby's Own Tablets. They are splendid for the children and babies, preventing colds from developing beyond the early stages. And because they are pleasant to take we have no trouble in administering them nor are there any gripping effects. We certainly recommend them to all parents. Once used no one would be without them."

Baby's Own Tablets, the health regulators for the little ones, are on sale at chemists and medicine dealers everywhere.

A WORD IN SEASON

THE business world is facing a period of slow recuperation. In it there is no place for undue optimism or undue pessimism. A measure of cautious procedure will see things through.

N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd. urges investors not to lose sight of the elements of investment—security of principal and certainty of yield. It stresses the fact that the price of a security must depend upon the conditions inside the issuing company and the trade and the conditions outside them. There is nothing else for it to depend upon.

Because of this, N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd. advises investors to place their money in a "Growing Industry." In an industry with a constructive plan already in action to meet a definite public need.

The £30 bonds of this Company—payable by instalments—issued to effect an afforestation programme of vital importance to international trade—amply secured—and with a conservatively estimated yield of £250 in approximately twelve years—are long-term investments of solid worth.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to be a wife. They take a cheap apartment and her struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Miss Pearson also on the News.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but she will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

July brings an intense heat wave. Friends invite Cherry and Dan to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed at the office and Cherry goes out with Pearson in his car. A heavy rainstorm overtakes them and they lose their way. At last they reach an old station and take shelter there. Pearson tells Cherry he loves her. She becomes angry and he leaves. Later they get out in the car and after a dangerous drive arrive home.

Several days later Dan tells Cherry he is tired of the town and wants to go to New York.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Dan was beside her. "Why, no," he said in a startled voice. "That isn't what I mean at all. I wouldn't go any place without you, Cherry. You know that!"

"But you said you wanted to get away from all this. I don't see how we could leave. There's the lease on the apartment."

"That's just it!" he insisted. "Leases—bills—always something to force you into a rut! That's what I hate, Cherry. That's what I want to get away from!"

"I don't see how things would be different anywhere else."

Dan stood before the window, a mutinous figure. He rubbed a hand through his hair, pushing the locks away.

"Oh, I suppose you're right. But, Lord! I wish something would come along to stir things up. I'm not used to this sort of life. I've always pushed on somewhere else when things got too tame."

The girl said nothing. Phillips turned and saw her brush her eyes with a handkerchief. He crossed the room and put a hand on her shoulder.

"Listen, honey," he said. "You know I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Why, I wouldn't do that for the world! Just forget I said anything. I'm just a tramp who guesses a no-good who doesn't realize when he's well off. You won't think any more about it, will you?"

you, Cherry? Promise me you won't!"

"But, I want you to be happy, Dan!"

His arms were around her. "Why shouldn't I be happy? I've got you, haven't I? Say, I guess I'm just about the luckiest guy on earth. And don't think I don't realize it! That crubbing doesn't mean anything. Come on—help with the dishes!"

He was unusually cheerful throughout the rest of the evening. After they had finished the kitchen work they rode down town to see a motion picture. Dan talked more than usual. It was only occasionally that he seemed to forget and lapsed into silence. Then Cherry saw the brooding look return to his face.

She could not persuade herself that whatever was troubling him had vanished so easily.

If Dan was worried he gave no indication of it during the next few days. He was punctual at meals, talked of his work and seemed interested in Cherry's recital of each day's events.

There were more letters from Cherry's mother. Mrs. Dixon reported she had gained four pounds. She and her husband were considering a drive into Maine with some friends for a short stay. The letters consisted chiefly of trivial bits of news. There had been a touch of hot weather but now it was gone. Mrs. Dixon hoped Cherry and Dan were both well.

There was a card from Dixie Shannon, bearing a Canadian postmark. Dixie wrote that she was having a glorious vacation and would be sorry to return home.

August proved to be as agreeable as July had been hot and unpleasant. Cherry, reading in news paper society columns that Gretchen Alden and her mother were extending their stay at Lake Louise, that other acquaintances were summering at Newport, attending the race meet at Saratoga or visiting distant resorts, was not in the least envious.

Her life settled into an agreeable calm. Dan, to his amazement, received the long expected raise in salary. It meant $5 a week added to the scanty household budget. They celebrated with a dinner at the Wellington that took the entire first week's $5.

Then on a Thursday evening Dan arrived home excitedly. "Cherry!" he cried as he pushed the door open, "you can't guess what's happened!"

She hurried from the kitchen. "No, of course I can't," she said. "What is it?"

"Say—wait till you hear! Boy, did I run into luck to-day! It's the chance I've been looking for—"

"For heaven's sake, Dan Phillips, stand still a minute and tell me what you're talking about!"

He caught her by the shoulders and held her away from him. "What would you say," he began. "If I told you that one of the best magazine writers in the country has promised to read those short stories your boy friend wrote, has promised to criticize them and help him find a market?"

"Oh, Dan—really? Why, that's wonderful! Who is he, Dan? How did it happen?"

Phillips drew himself up in mock dignity. "It's like this, lady," he began. "I was walking down the street—"

"Stop it this minute!" Cherry insisted. "And tell me what's really happened. Who is this writer and how did you meet him?"

"It's not a 'he,'" Dan told her. "It's a 'her.' Brenda Vail—ever read anything of her? To tell the truth neither have I but she's one of the big shots." He rattled off the names of a half-dozen magazines to which Brenda Vail had contributed. She's here on business. Something about some land she owns and wants to sell. Rogers usually does all the literary interviews, you know, but he's on vacation. I didn't have much to do this afternoon and Bates sent me over to talk to Miss Vail. It seems that years ago when she was a kid she had an aunt who lived here. She—I mean Miss Vail, not the aunt—used to spend part of the summers here. It made a pretty fair future about the famous author coming back to the scene of her childhood—but that's not the important part!"

"We got to talking about writing. She's—oh, she's marvellous! The minute you see her you know you're not meeting an ordinary person. She has beautiful red hair and big, sort of grey-green eyes—I don't know how to describe her exactly. There's something about her, though, that's different from other people. She wanted to know if I'd ever written anything except newspaper stuff and when I said I'd tried but hadn't been able to sell anything she asked me if she could see one of my stories. Said she'd read it and maybe she could advise me where to send it. Can you imagine that? A writer like Brenda Vail going to all that trouble for someone she'd never seen before?"

"Why, I thought I'd show her that yarn about the kids in juvenile court—the one I called 'Kempy's Crime.' Nobody else has seen it. I figured there might be a sort of a jinx on the other story. The one that came back after I sent it out. Miss Vail said if I'd bring it over to the hotel tonight she'd read it."

PUBLIC CONTROL
OF INDUSTRIES

One of the resolutions passed by the Trade Unions Congress now sitting at Newcastle urges, amongst other things, the public control of monopoly industries. This is in line with the study which the trade union movement has been giving to methods for securing the transition from unregulated private enterprise to public ownership and control of essential industries. In other words, the idea aimed at is what is termed "socialisation" of industry, and it is worth noting that the methods now favoured differ very greatly from the older ideas of the form which this socialisation should take. The change in outlook is largely the result of experience gained in the United Kingdom and abroad.

The Economic Committee of the T.U.C. has long had this question under consideration, and in a report which it has submitted to the Congress an attempt is made to re-define the aims of the movement, in the light of modern conditions. Particular consideration is given to the public corporation type of organisation—that is, an undertaking controlled by a body appointed by the Government or other public authority under statute. The report anticipates that the change from undiluted private enterprise in many industries will be by way of general governmental regulation leading to operation by public corporations. It has to be remembered, in this connection, that essential industries and services upon which the very existence of the community depends are already largely unified and subjected to a certain measure of public regulation. Rail, transport, power supply, and coal mining are to some extent regulated by Acts of Parliament; the supply of gas and water is also subject to supervision; whilst communication services are State-owned. Other industries which, though not in the same sense vital to the existence of the community are nevertheless important, are for the most part unregulated, although some of them fell under a large measure of public control during the war. It does not follow, of course, that socialisation and public control of industries mean direct administration tion by a Government Department. There are various methods of securing some measure of public control, examples of which already exist in the case, amongst others, of the B.C.C., the Port of London Authority, the Central Electricity Board, the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, the Suez Canal, the Imperial Airways, the railways, and the coal and gas industries. These methods vary from operation by a public corporation, financial (and therefore directive) participation by the Government in private enterprise, and regulation by the establishment of legislative standards governing such matters as price, quality, compulsory publicity for accounts, and the establishment of supervisory bodies.

Whether, in the future, the country's main industries are privately owned, publicly owned, or a combination of the two, the general interest of the producers of goods and services will exist. The T.U.C. has already, by its endorsement of the proposals of the Melchett-T.U.C. Conference, indicated its support of the project for a National Industrial Council. A body of this kind, whether constituted precisely on the basis suggested by that Conference or on some other basis, would, it is felt, not merely provide an important piece of machinery for the consideration of the general problems of industry; but would also be able to exercise a powerful influence on the general direction of the nation's economic and industrial policy.

Law Not War.

Among the several cases now before the Permanent Court of International Justice at the Hague, there is one between Norway and Denmark of more than ordinary importance. In the first place it has been raised as a result of the application of the so-called Optional Clause. By signing this clause of its Statutes, countries pledge themselves in advance to have recourse to the Court whenever they are engaged in a legal dispute with another country which has also signed the Clause. This is the first time that a case has ever come to fruition as the result of its application, though there have been several occasions on which it has been invoked. It will be remembered that the various League members who are also members of the British Commonwealth have also signed and ratified this particular clause. They have done so, however, with the reservation that inter-imperial disputes are not to come to the Court in the first instance. It is for this reason that Great Britain's present dispute with Ireland has not been referred to the Court. In the second place the Danish-Norwegian dispute is of considerable importance in virtue of the fact that it deals with the right of possession in uninhabited portions of the Arctic—and, by analogy, of the Antarctic—regions. The cause of the dispute was the raising of the Norwegian flag by some trappers last year over certain portions of Eastern Greenland. Denmark claims the whole of Greenland, inhabited or uninhabited, as her own. The Norwegians on the other hand, who want to use the inlets on the eastern coast as bases for hunting, fishing and trapping, do not agree. Hence the case before the Permanent Court. On the decision given by the Court which is the only place in the world where nation can sue nation just as individuals sue individuals in the national courts of justice, turns a great deal of interest of Britain. The ownership of different sectors of the Antarctic continent is far from clear. Australia, New Zealand and South Africa claim all land lying between themselves and the Pole as their own property. In virtue of this claim they levy toll upon the whalers in the Weddell or the Ross Seas. They also try to restrict whaling within appropriate limits so as to prevent its extinction. That they are right in this last contention is shown by the fact that at the last League Assembly there was passed a special international convention for the protection of whales. Unfortunately, this has been ratified, so far, only by Monaco, Nicaragua, the Sudan

DAY BY DAY

BE SMART IN APPEARANCE, BE EFFICIENT IN SERVICE, BUT BE HUMBLE OF HEART.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Potter left for Japan by the Asama Maru yesterday.

Dr. Ma Luk returned to the Colony by the Empress of Asia after an excursion trip to the Philippines.

Arrivals, yesterday from Hong Kong by the s.s. Carthage included Mr. and Mrs. Primmall, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Overy.

After taking a dose of Jeyes fluid in mistake for Chinese wine, Li Leung-shi, aged 60, of 29, Belcher Street, was removed to the Government Civil Hospital by relatives yesterday. Her condition, however, is not serious.

The local branch of the Chartered Bank has received the following telegram dated 7th instant from the London Office: "Directors have declared an interim dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 14% per annum, subject to Income Tax."

The Lincolns are coming to Hong Kong from Shanghai a month earlier than expected and will arrive in the Colony on October 3rd. In consequence of their earlier arrival, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders will leave for Shanghai early in October.

Early this morning an Indian constable, who was on duty in Kennedy Road, was attracted to house No. 27 by the blowing of police whistles. He noticed a man, evidently a thief, drop from the window to the ground, and disappear among the bushes. Nothing, however, was stolen.

During last week, eight cases of cholera, six from Victoria and two from Kowloon, with five deaths, (one imported); one case of typhoid with one death (imported); and two cases of meningitis, were reported to the health authorities. Deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis totalled 67. There was a clean bill of health on Tuesday.

Convicted of receiving a quantity of brass stolen from the Tung Tai workshop at Shaokwan, an elderly hawker was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning. It was stated that the metal, which was worth $20, was bought by the hawker for $2.50, the disparity in values being held against the defendant as denoting guilty knowledge. The police proved three previous convictions against the defendant, the last one dating as far as 1911.

COSMIC RIDDLE

By DR. R. A. MILLIKAN

(This article sets out the main points in investigations of the cosmic rays, the study of which may exert a profound if not a determinative influence upon all theories of the evolution of the universe.)

Electricity in the atmosphere discharges an electroscope. Before 1909 rays were known which would discharge an electroscope through metal walls inches thick, but these rays were taken to be radio-active emanations from the earth. In 1909 Gockel took an electroscope up in a balloon to a height of 4 1/4 kilometres and found that its rate of discharge was greater at that height than on earth. This showed that there were rays whose origin was outside the earth either in the upper atmosphere or in outer space. Several other scientists besides myself have made investigations to decide between these two possibilities, and I think that to-day the cosmic origin has been generally conceded.

There are three main points about these cosmic rays which now seem to be well established. The first is that the intensity of the rays is practically uniform day and night. It varies slightly with the barometer as a result of slight variations in the atmospheric blanket induced by the alternate heating and cooling of the gaseous matter through which the rays reach the earth. But the intensity of the rays is quite independent of the position of the sun, the Milky Way or other celestial objects.

Origin of the Rays

If the rays came from the sun they would be strongest when the sun was strongest; if from the Milky Way they would be strongest when the Milky Way was overhead; but we find that they are equally as strong at the morning or evening twilight. I conclude that they do not come from the masses of matter in the universe, but from the interstellar spaces. This is not so unlikely a place of origin as it might have seemed a few years ago, before Bowen at the Norman Bridge Laboratory proved that the common elements, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, carbon, and sulphur, as well as helium, exist out there, giving rise to radiations in regions which may be many light-years away from the stars from which the radiations start.

The second important fact about cosmic rays is that they are not influenced at all by the earth's magnetic field. This I proved by taking very careful and very exact readings with the same sensitive electroscope, first at Pasadena, lat. 34° deg. N., and then at Churchill, Manitoba, lat. 59° deg. N., the nearest settlement on earth to the north magnetic pole. From the fact that there was no difference in the readings I concluded that before the rays entered the earth's atmosphere they have not traversed any amount of matter which is comparable in thickness with that atmosphere; if they had they would necessarily be mixed with secondary beta rays, which would be directed along the earth's magnetic lines and would therefore enter it in the neighbourhood of the magnetic poles. If they came even from the re-

A Balloon Test

The third fact is that not all the cosmic rays are equally penetrative. My colleague, Cameron, and I, in a balloon flight which went up to 15 1/2 kilometres, through 92 per cent. by weight, of the atmosphere, found that the rate of increase of electric quality in the atmosphere as we went up was not maintained in the upper regions; there are "soft" cosmic rays, which do not penetrate all the way into our atmosphere. This shows that they enter the atmosphere as pure photons, a photon being a fragment of the energy of an atom discharged through space with the velocity of light. The rays that penetrate the farthest finally "settle down" in equilibrium with the secondary rays which they, so to speak, pick up within the earth's atmosphere. The soft, less penetrative, rays carry about 90 per cent. of the total energy of the cosmic rays which enter the atmosphere. The fact that the rays enter as pure photons and need some distance to "settle down" is another proof, I think, that they originate in interstellar space.

These "soft" cosmic rays have an energy of 25,000,000 volts, being ten times as intense as the radio-active gamma rays of thorium; and they will pass through five times as much water.

An Einstein Equation

What is the source of all this energy? I do not see how it can be, as some think, due to the annihilation of the matter of the stars, because I have shown that the rays do not seem to have any relation to the stars. If one assumes, as others do, cosmic electric fields, one will have, in order to account for the uniformity of intensity of the rays on the earth, to assume uniformity of distribution of the fields with respect to the earth, i.e., practically a geocentric theory of the universe, which has been repugnant to science since 1600 A.D.

For an explanation I turn to an Einstein equation which states with entire definiteness that there is no atomic transformation which can furnish the necessary energy except an atom-building process. I take it that the cosmic rays are the wireless signals of the building in interstellar space of at least some of the heavier elements out of the lighter. We have abundant evidence that all elements are built from hydrogen and helium; the atom of helium is built out of the four atoms of hydrogen; so the building of helium from hydrogen is the commonest atom-building process. The energy of this transformation and other data to be 25,000,000 volts, which is at least a remarkable coincidence.

If this theory of atom-building in the spaces between the stars proves correct, it will obviously have the strongest influence on all future views of the origin and destiny of the universe.

PUNISH THE PUNNERS

By Edward Kelly, Painter.

This insidious punning habit has got to cease.

Let us organise a pun-itive expedition for the punishment of pun-ners. (Sorry!)

There is only one thing to beat them with—brains. Beat them out with pick handles.

We have a friend who as soon as he sees us, becomes a general nuisance. We hone a mental razor every time we meet him, for we know he is going to pun. He was vaccinated with a gramophone needle.

All punners have weak intellects and ingrowing toenails. That's why we don't like them. Therefore, they (punners, we mean) must be ruthlessly exterminated. All punners are skinny, wizened men. It shall be a question of the survival of the fittest.

We met one yesterday. He greeted us with, "What's the Mate, Har! Haven't you seen 'Working Girls' yet?" We were a bit haughty.

We said, "Our name is not Harry. We are a married man and, besides, we are a journalist, not a sailor."

Here's one coming now. He looks determined. We can feel it coming on. So it's time to get out.

K. C. C. JUNIOR FINALISTS

DUNNE & WHITE TO MEET

E. C. FINCHER LOSES

The finalists in the K.C.C. junior tennis championship on Saturday next will be P.O. Dunne and G. A. White as a result of yesterday's games which saw Dunne eliminate N. A. E. Mackay in straight sets, and White overcome L. Jack by the same margin.

After winning the first set with comfort, E. C. Fincher lost his grip on the game against W. C. Hung in the Handicap Singles "A" and was eventually beaten by the odd set.

Yesterday's results and the programmes for the next three days follow.

JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP (SEMI-FINALS).

G. A. White beat L. Jack 6-3, 11-9, 6-3.
P. O. Dunne beat N. A. E. Mackay 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

YOUTH KILLED BY GOLF CLUB

Blow on Back of Neck Causes Death

Bathurst.—A sudden blow on the neck with a golf-club was responsible for the death, on July 23, of Keith Wall, 16-year-old student at St. Stanislaus College.

Medical evidence at the inquest showed that no bones were broken, but that death resulted from shock due to the blow having affected a nerve to the brain.

Wall, a Mudgee lad, had made several vain attempts to hit the ball when Reginald Twentyman, also of Mudgee, offered to instruct him.

He took the club from Wall, and as he swung the club it struck Wall on the side of the neck.

"I'm sorry, Keith!" exclaimed Twentyman, turning to his companion who stood for a couple of seconds with his hand to his face, then swayed and fell.

ALWAYS FATAL.

Twentyman caught him and laid him on the ground. Every effort was made at the College to revive Wall, but when Dr. Salter arrived, the boy was dead.

"In 999 cases out of 1,000 a blow of that description would have proved fatal," said Dr. Salter.

The finding was accidental death.

Serious accidents at golf are rare although two men were killed on Victorian links last year through being struck on the head by a ball.

W. W. Hirst and F. S. W. Smith v C. J. Tacchi and J. R. Way.
E. R. Price and Mrs. W. Old v R. Buchanan and Mrs. Way.

THE AIR-RECONDITIONING SYSTEM IN THE KING'S THEATRE. HONGKONG.

Modern theatre design includes some kind of system whereby the interior air is properly treated to warm, cool, or purify it as circumstances require.

In the temperature zones, where variations of temperature during the year may vary between zero weather in December and torrid days in June, provisions must be made for both heating and cooling the inside air. In the tropics, variations in temperature are not so great but the troublesome factor is the humidity. All air-reconditioning systems are designed to control the per cent. of moisture or the humidity of the air wherever the system is used, as well as the temperature.

In laying out the air control system for the King's Theatre, a study was made of the prevailing characteristics of Hongkong climate over a long period of time. Data secured from the local weather bureau records over twenty years indicated that the temperature range in Hongkong could be expected to vary between 94°F and 78°F, with a general average of 80°F. The relative humidity or moisture content of the air expressed in a convenient percentage was found to be about 81% at the average temperature of 80°F. Now, relative humidity is the ratio of the actual amount of moisture contained in a unit volume of the mixture to the amount of water this volume holds at the same temperature. If it were saturated, measured in pounds of water vapour per cubic foot of air. Now, if partially saturated air is cooled at constant pressure, until a certain low temperature is reached, the water will condense out of the air, just as it does during a cloudless night in the temperate zones when we say the "dew falls." This explanation of the theory is essential in order to explain away the popular misconception about air cooling for public gathering places. The primary object is to provide a means of controlling the humidity of the entering air, as well as the actual temperature. Cold wet air would provide a most disagreeable atmosphere but dry even a little below outside temperature is most enjoyable.

The equipment installed in this theatre is designed to supply clean air throughout the house so that, when it is filled with people, the average temperature will be about 75° to 80°F and the relative humidity about 60%. This means that the air inside will have only about one-third as much moisture in it as that contained in the outside air, providing delightfully cool dry atmosphere in which one can refresh himself even on a hot, sticky day.

To accomplish these three results, viz., purification, drying and cooling of the air, a complete plant has been installed. The essential units are the ammonia compressors, condenser, brine cooler, air washer and circulating fan all electrically controlled. In practice, cold brine is rapidly circulated through a series of tubes over which the incoming air is drawn by the fan. Jets of water spray on this air, washing out of it all dust and impurities. Its passage over the chilled coils cools it to a point where the water vapour condenses out. It is then drawn through the fan and forced into the duct system, which is installed above the ceiling of the main portion of the house and above the seats under the balcony. The cool air is displaced as the warmer air rises and is finally returned to the washer through the outlets or "Mushrooms" under the seats on the floor. After repeated changes and washings the entire atmosphere inside the theatre will be brought to about the same temperature and humidity. Sudden changes in the outside air, some of which is constantly being introduced into the system, such as increase in moisture content or rise in temperature, will be taken into account and the compensating allowances made in the system to again establish a uniform inside atmosphere.

Some facts about the equipment may be of interest. When nearly 1,100 people are together in a single large room, a very definite amount of heat and products of breathing are given off. Each individual must be supplied with a certain amount of pure fresh air per minute, otherwise, the room soon becomes "stuffy." In this design a total of 39,000 cubic of reconditioned air will be supplied to the ducts overhead which will give every person in the house about 38 cubic feet of air per minute, an amount entirely sufficient for perfect atmospheric comfort.

To purify and cool this amount of air requires the circulation of a very large amount of chilled brine. This is accomplished in a twelve feet horizontal brine cooler. The brine circulates through the brine pipes in the air washer and back through the cooler. The cooling of the brine is accomplished by liquid ammonia evaporating inside the cooler around the brine tubes. As the ammonia evaporates, taking away the heat from the brine, the vapour is drawn into one or two vertical ammonia compressors of the latest design, driven by direct-voltage. The compressors are single acting machines, 8" x 8" and 9" x 9", running at 300 R.P.M. The smaller compressor is driven by a 75 H.P. Motor and the larger by a 100 H.P. Motor.

The brine circulating pump is rated at 500 G.P.M. against a 50-foot head, thus giving about 25 lbs. pressure through the brine cooler and coils of the washer. It is direct-connected to a 16 H.P. induction motor running at 1450 R.P.M. The water used in the spray system for purifying and cooling the air is circulated by a pumping unit similar to the brine pump described above. This is pure water drawn from the Colony's water system.

The circulating fan for the house is a positive acting low pressure blower horizontally mounted and running at 875 R.P.M. It is driven by three "V" type rubber belts from a 20 H.P., 3 phase 360-volt, 1450 R.P.M. motor.

The connected cooling of the ammonia vapour in the ammonia condenser requires a relatively large amount of cold water. Study was first made to see if water from the local mains could be used and then re-cooled by means of a cooling pond or tower, but it was found that the amount required and the cooling area necessary entailed prohibitive costs. It was, therefore, decided to use SEA water for cooling the condenser. A pump house was built near Blake Pier. A direct-connected centrifugal pump rated at 400 G.P.M. at a 65-foot head, driven by a 20 H.P. motor puts sea water through 1100 feet of 6" pipes to the condenser from whence it flows back to the sea through the nullah which runs under Pedder Street.

Besides the air-conditioning apparatus described above, the refrigerating plant contains the main control switchboard for the entire system.

ESSAY COMPETITION

RECENTLY HELD

ATTRACTED ENTRIES FROM THE PRINCIPAL COLLEGES OF THE COLONY.

THE FIRST THREE PRIZES WERE AWARDED AS FOLLOWS:—

FIRST — TSE SHUI MAN,
St. Paul's College.

SECOND — CHAN KIM YING

(Following the recent Essay Competition, which proved most popular, the Prizes will be distributed by the Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso, at the King's Theatre, at 5 p.m. on September 10th. The First Prize is a gold medal, the Second Prize a silver medal, while a book will be awarded as the Third Prize. In addition, Complimentary Tickets will be awarded to the competitors who secured the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth places).

THE FIRST-PRIZE ESSAY.

To-day the popularity of Cinema Theatres cannot be denied. The number of theatres throughout the world is increasing daily, and they are becoming so popular that the people now prefer patronizing them to attending the ordinary theatres.

Not only do the proprietors of Cinema theatres provide their patrons with the productions of the most famous screen stars, but the greatest attention is paid to ways and means for ensuring the comfort of their customers, particularly during the hot and sultry Summer months of the year.

In order that patrons may sit and enjoy the masterpieces of the leading screen artists in comfort, the most up-to-date methods are being tried and adopted for cooling and purifying the air inside the Cinema Theatres.

In the majority of existing theatres the atmosphere is hot, unhealthy and suffocating, and the only methods of cooling in use are ventilating fans. Owing to the crowded state of the theatre, the air remains hot and polluted till the audience disperses.

The air which we breathe is the source of life and serves as a carrier of heat and moisture to or away from our bodies; and the heat of humid surroundings is most uncomfortable and depressing, as everybody who has experienced a Hongkong Summer well knows.

In the past, little was known of the evil of breathing "used-up" air, and such a state of the atmosphere was termed "musty" by theatre-goers of those days and was suffered by them without complaint. However, more recently, theatre owners began to realize the importance of ventilating theatres by allowing the foul air to escape and fresh air to enter. Another method of purifying the atmosphere was the drawing out of the foul air by means of centrifugal fans in the roof of the building, fresh air entering through the doors and windows.

Later came the idea of cooling the air. The first system tried was the Carrier System, which cooled the atmosphere by means of ice. There are, however, certain drawbacks to this method, as the building must necessarily be kept air-tight and if fresh air be allowed to enter it interferes with the cooling process, which must then be repeated, and besides, there is as much moisture in the atmosphere as before and the relative humidity is higher.

The latest method of air-conditioning, as installed at the King's Theatre, provides for a constant temperature and constant state of humidity, besides ensuring a continuous supply of pure, cool and well-oxygenated air. This new system keeps the air inside the theatre relatively pure and wholesome and at a temperature of about 75 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 55% to 65% in Summer, and at a temperature of about 70 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 35% to 40% in Winter.

The fresh outside air is drawn through an opening by a fan and then passed into the Spray Chamber, where it is washed and cooled to the desired temperature by jets of water from the "refrigerator" of the Spray Chamber. The air, having been cooled to a temperature of about 45 degrees Fahrenheit, is passed out of the Spray Chamber to the Mixing Chamber where 75% of conditioned air is allowed to mix with 25% of the warm air from the theatre. The air is now correctly cooled and conditioned to a temperature of approximately 75 degrees Fahrenheit and is allowed to pass into the body of the theatre in a "blanket" from the ceiling and other points of the theatre, providing a continuous supply of pure, fresh, cool air, till the performance is over and the audience disperses.

Under every seat in the theatre there are perforated openings, through which the used air inside the theatre is continuously being drawn off and passed out of the theatre.

After each performance, and after the floor has been swept and cleaned, all exits are thrown open and the old air is entirely removed in about two minutes by starting the small "exit" fans and the three big centrifugal fans which are installed in the roof of the building for this purpose. This ensures a supply of pure, fresh and cool air at every performance. This ensures the lobes of her ears and to her lips. Then she stepped back, surveying herself in the mirror.

The effect must have been satisfying. She was a tall, slender woman. The black of the dress contrasted strikingly with the mass of auburn hair that waved about her face and was fastened in a knot low on her neck. There was too much of that hair for the sleek, fashionable outline but it was undoubtedly distinctive. Brenda Vail was not beautiful. There was about her, however, a manner that invariably brought her attention. Perhaps it was the craving Brenda Vail herself had for attention.

She selected exotic costumes, wore her glorious hair in a way that was definitely not fashionable, challenged the world to look at her—and it did!

There came a ring from the telephone in the next room. Miss Vail hurried forward.

"Yes?" she said crisply. Immediately her voice changed. "Oh, it's you!" The words came softly. "Yes, of course. I've been waiting for you. Won't you come up?"

The room had been furnished as a living room. Hastily Brenda Vail pulled a small chair nearer the chaise longue that stood near the window. She adjusted the pillows, stepped back and eyed them critically.

A moment later she was opening the door.

"Good evening, Mr. Phillips," she smiled. "It's so good of you to come. I've been wondering what I was to do with myself this whole lonely evening. Won't you come in?"

Dan entered. He seemed a trifle embarrassed. "I hope you don't mind," he said. "I took you at your word and brought that story for you to read."

"But I'm delighted! Here—won't you take this chair? You'll find cigarettes in the box. That's right. Make yourself comfortable."

She sank to the chaise longue, laid the manuscript casually on a table behind her.

Miss Vail raised a cigarette in a long ebony holder to her lips and expelled a curling wreath of smoke. The grey-green eyes narrowed.

"Later," she said, "I'll read your story. Just now I'm interested in you. You know, Mr. Phillips, I think that I like you very much."

LONDON CONCERNED.

BOYCOTT DECISION AROUSES DISAPPOINTMENT

London, Sept. 7. Keen disappointment has been aroused in well-informed circles in London by the Chinese Guild's decision in declaring the anti-Japanese blockade, despite the hopes aroused by the appeal by the Mayor of Shanghai, Mr. Wu Teh-chen, for conciliation.

Far Eastern commercial quarters are of the opinion that the boycott is primarily of Chinese domestic concern as long as it remains a boycott, but apprehension is expressed lest a similar mistake to that made last year should lead to seizures and the burning of Japanese goods, which would result in the reopening of last December's situation at Shanghai. Meanwhile, interest in Manchuria has been quickened by the announcement that three British subjects have been captured by bandits.—Reuter.

THE MOST WONDERFUL AIR EPIC OF THE WAR "ACES" WITH MARVELLOUS SOUND & MUSICAL SYNCHRONIZATION.

A tragic flood of lead! He fired round after round into the vital of the ship of the air that bore the insignia of the enemy.
How was he to know that the pilot was the pal he believed dead—the very pal he had been avenging?
It's the most stirring climax the screen has given! And it's but one of a host of towering moments in a mighty picture that will carry you over the clouds to a thousand thrills. Actually filmed miles high in the air.
It's the picture which thrilled Broadway for more than a year. It's the picture London, Paris and all the big cities of the world hailed as the greatest screen masterpiece. It has won a rising volume of praise.

The Prime Minister is engaged on a careful study of the mass of papers connected with the Ottawa Conference, and is in consultation with his advisers regarding the work of the House of Commons, which when it meets, will deal with the legislation contained in the agreements reached by the Conference. Some days are likely to elapse before any conclusions can be reached as to the reassembly of Parliament.

Mr. Stanley Bruce, Australian Minister in London, who headed the Australian delegation at the Ottawa Conference, arrived in London to-day. A representative of the Dominions Secretary greeted him on arrival.

Mr. Andrew Mellon, United States Ambassador in London, who has been in America on leave, returned to London to-day. He was a fellow-passenger with Mr. Bruce in the White Star liner Olympic from New York.—British Wireless.

London, Sept. 7.
The Secretary for India has reappointed, for a further period, Sir Henry Wheeler, whose term of office as a member of the Council of India will expire on October 4th. Sir Henry, who entered the Indian Civil Service in 1891, has had a distinguished career and has been a member of the Council of India since 1927.—British Wireless.

Derby, and Udaipur, which ran fourth, were more fancied than Pirdausi, the 20/1 winner of the race, whose jockey, Fred Fox, made a lucky last-minute change of mounts from Taj Nasra.

Bony, for the third time in classic races, with the choice of all four of the Aga Khan's starters offered to him, unluclily refused to change his mount, Dastur, for the winner, choosing to stick by the horse which had carried him into second place in each of his two previous starts.

ORWELL'S FAILURE.

The charge against Orwell of lack of stamina seems to have been definitely confirmed by the St. Leger. He started a fairly strong favourite at 4/1 but fell back when prominent, being well in the van until a quarter of a mile from home.

April the Fifth also ran exceedingly well until a furlong from home when he was successively passed by the Aga Khan's entries.—Renter.
